A GRAND WEDDING

Marriage of Mayor Courtney and Miss Brouillette.

at ST. JEAN BAPTISTE CHURCH TONIGHT.

Six Bridesmaids Will Attend the Bride.

One of the greatest weddings that ever occurred in Lowell will take place tonight.

Shortly after six o'clock in the presence of several thousand friends, Mayor William F. Courtney and Miss Alice A. Brouillette will be united in matrimony at the beautiful St. Jean Baptiste church, on Merrimack street. With fair weather the streets in the vicinity will undoubtedly be crowded with people anxious to get a glimpse of the mayor and his fair young bride as they march from the grand edifice. Rev. Fr. Guillard, O. M. I., will perform the ceremony.

A temporary altar has been constructed and chairs have been placed in the large auditorium. The guests will be escorted to seats by 15 ushers, who will also act as escort to the bridal party. Miss Brouillette will have six bridesmaids, besides maid of honor. The costumes worn by the ladies will be rich and of beautiful design. After the church ceremony, which will probably be somewhat prolonged, the guests will be driven to the home of the bride's parents, 1996 Middlesex street, where the reception will be held.

It is said that every carriage in Lowell has been engaged and it will be necessary to charter special cars to carry the large number of people from the church to the house.

The invited guests include many prominent out-of-town people. The Redberry club of Boston, of which Mayor Courtney is a member, and which includes in its ranks Congressman Fitzgerald, City Messenger Leary, Senator Sullivan, ex-Senator Kennedy, Thomas Strange of the Boston school board, and many other prominent Bostonians will come up on the 3 o'clock train this afternoon. There will be thirty of them, and after the reception they will be entertained by the Big 12 club.

Many mayors in this state and New Hampshire have been invited and some will attend.

Several hundred letters of congratulation have poured in upon the bride-to-be, and each one conveys the good wishes for happiness, prosperity and joy. Some contain cute quotations from authors, one writer has had recourse to the bible and several have written the prettiest original poems imaginable.

The wedding presents will form the grandest and undoubtedly the costliest display ever seen in this city. Every branch of the city government has recognized the important event by handsome gifts. License Commissioner Brady will give the best individual present the Mayor and Mrs. Courtney will receive. It is a very costly piece of furniture. The French merchants of the city will present the young couple with a gift as valuable as any they will receive. Yesterday afternoon Rabbi Wolfson, Pres. Reubin and Sec. Julian of the Hebrew Independent association, called at the Mayor's law office and requested his presence for a few minutes. When the Mayor appeared, Pres. Reubin in a neat speech presented him with a beautiful solid silver ice pitcher, with silver mugs. The pitcher was engraved, "Presented to Mayor William F. Courtney by the Lowell Hebrew association." The Mayor expressed his appreciation of the gift and requested the committee to convey his sincere thanks to the members of the association.

The bridal couple will leave the house at 9 o'clock and take a carriage for the Northern depot where they will take the 9.25 train for Boston.

In Boston they will board the midnight train for New York, and the trip will also include a trip to Philadelphia and Washington. They will be gone two weeks and on their return will reside at 69 Third street. They will be "at home" Wednesdays in January.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

Music Hall.

Harry Montague's comedians delighted another large audience at this house last evening in the rollicking farce comedy, "My Uncle From New York." The final presentation of this side-splitting absurdity will be given this afternoon and evening, and if you enjoy good, clean humor interspersed with catchy music, avail yourselves of these last opportunities. Tomorrow evening, Edward Hanford and his company open a three night's engagement at this house.

MATRIMONIAL.

A fashionable wedding occurred in the Grace church last evening the contracting parties being Miss Mary, daughter of William D. Earle and Frederick A. Wood of Buffalo, N. Y., a member of the Buffalo Express staff. The handsome edifice was beautifully decorated and was filled with relatives and friends of the happy couple. the ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by Rev. R. A. Greene, Mrs. James B. Field presiding at the organ.

The bride was accompanied by her bridesmaids, four in number, and Miss Ruth Coburn as maid of honor. The bridesmaids were Misses Elizabeth Taylor and Edith Swan of Cambridge and Louise Reader and Helen Lambert of Lowell. Mr. Fred N. Wier was best man and the ushers were Messrs. Will Earle, Col. Fred T. Walsh, H. Kirk White and John Lambert.

The bride was attired in a handsome and becoming costume of ivory satin and carried lilies of the valley, and the bridesmaids wore white organdie and carried garlands of laurel.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's father on Pawtucket street. The home was tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums. A collation was served by the Page Co. and the American orchestra discoursed sweet music. Mr. and Mrs. Wood departed on their honeymoon at 9 o'clock and will take up their residence at Buffalo.

Emmott—Flanagan.

Walter H. Emmott and Miss Maud Flanagan were united in marriage last evening by Rev. Mr. Manchester of St. John's church at 71 Westford street. The bride was attended by Miss May Flanagan while Leonard J. Jewett was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Herbert L. Bishop and Samuel Davis. The interior of the house was beautifully decorated and the wedding gifts were numerous and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Emmott will reside at 71 Westford street.

Police Court—Hadley J.

There were ten drunks in this morning and a majority of them were clean cut, well dressed young men who looked decidedly out of place in the prisoners' dock. Judge Hadley delivered sound advice to them as they were fined.

Richard Gibbons was fined $10 for drunkenness.

John Hennessey pleaded not guilty to the charge of larceny of an $8 cape from Ann Rosenbury and claimed that the woman gave him the cape to pawn. He was sent to jail for three months for larceny and ten days for drunkenness.

William Lawrenson, who pleaded guilty of larceny of a valise filled with underwear and the like received 10 months in jail.

Thomas D. Bodkin, for larceny, was continued until tomorrow.

Thomas F. Gallagher and his wife aired their little domestic difficulty in court this morning when after they'd told both sides of the story, the court called upon Probation Officer Tattle to effect a reconciliation.

The case of R. A. Carkin and Allen M. Spaulding for assault and battery while in a street car, was continued until Nov 19.

Store Entered.

Richards' grocery store at 311 Middlesex street was broken into Saturday night and $100 was stolen, according to the proprietor, who also claimed that he was robbed of two pocket-books while the parade was passing Saturday night.

People's Club.

The monthly meeting of the board of government last night received reports of the remarkable attendance noted this season. During October there were 4360 visitors to the men's branch reading room, a nightly average of 161. The number of books taken out was 486. The largest attendance was on Oct. 8, when there were 280 visitors. In the amusement room the total attendance was 3033, an average of 112. Last night every seat in both rooms was occupied. The women's branch was open three weeks in October, with an average attendance of 12, 21 and 26 in the respective weeks. The classes are so large that another room may be necessary for their accommodation.

The annual report of Treasurer J. G. Marshal showed a flourishing condition of the finances. The receipts were $2069.41. The expenses including $325 carried to the permanent fund, were $2418.55, leaving a balance or $250.86 for the new account.

BENJAMIN WALKER DEAD

ONE OF LOWELL'S OLDEST RESIDENTS PASSES AWAY.

He Spent Many Years in the Service of the J. C. Ayer Company—Died Suddenly.

Benjamin Walker, one of Lowell's oldest and most prominent residents, died quite suddenly this morning at his home, 100 Appleton street, at the ripe old age of 74 years.

Deceased was a native of Wilmington, Mass., and came to this city as the age of four years. After receiving an education in the schools of this city, he entered the employ of the J. C. Ayer Co., where he labored continuously all through life until last Monday when he was taken ill. He was one of the oldest and most respected employe of the laboratory.

Though prominent among his fellows and trusted and respected by all, Mr. Walker was a modest retiring person belonging to few societies or clubs with the exception of the Old Residents' association of which he was president. He was also treasurer of the Lowell and Andover railroad.

He is survived by a widow and one daughter. The funeral will occur Saturday.

A SWELL UP-TO-DATE CLUB

BUFFALO WOMEN NOW OWN THEIR OWN CLUBHOUSE.

The Twentieth Century Club a Pioneer. Charlotte Mulligan, the President, Tells How the Women Raised $56,000 In Two Weeks—They Employ No Women.

The Twentieth Century club of Buffalo opened its new clubhouse the other evening. This club is composed exclusively of women, and the fact that it is the first woman's club in the country to establish itself, buy a home and run its affairs on the same lines on which men's clubs are run entitles it to attention.

Charlotte Mulligan, writer and musical director, is the president and the motor that supplies the force and directs the affairs of this club of 250 women.

"We wanted a home," said this energetic woman, "and the earnest work of our board of directors has won a home for us. We found a desirable piece of property in an old Baptist church that had been for sale a long time. Since a synagogue had been built next door to it it was not in demand as church property. The agent wanted $80,000 for it. When I said the Twentieth Century club would buy it, he only laughed at me. But he gave me the refusal for two weeks. The board of directors met. We issued 760 shares of stock at $100 per share. In less than two weeks we had sold more than half of it. We paid cash for the property, and then we built a beautiful front and remodeled the old building; hence, as the building stands, it cost $56,000.

"Our stock is nearly all owned by club members. We have beautiful clubrooms, which we rent to other women's clubs, and an auditorium, from which we realize rentals. Any club of women can do the same thing if they choose to do so. It is merely a simple business proposition."

The building is of the style of the Italian Renaissance. It is 78 feet wide and 96 feet deep. The main courtroom is of the Grecian Ionic style, 35 feet square, and contains 26 Ionic pillars, now of wood, but designed to be replaced by memorial pillars of marble. There are a handsome library room, a conversation room, a coffee room and an auditorium on the first floor. All the rooms are finished in white. There are kitchens, lavatories and every possible modern convenience. These Buffalo women employ no female service about their building. They think that male service is superior, in that it is more trustworthy and amenable. The Twentieth Century club claims to lead also in entertaining male friends. Any club member can bring a male guest into the club for luncheon or conversation. He cannot, however, remain after his hostess has departed. He may receive as many courtesies as women receive at men's clubs and perhaps more.

"We never do anything here we are ashamed of," said the energetic president, "and that's more than the men can say for their clubs."

Miss Mulligan is the founder and president of a literary club called the Scribblers and is also leader of the finest orchestra in Buffalo. The Twentieth Century club is entirely independent and is not allied to the Federation of Women's Clubs. It's business is the promotion of art and general culture.

The only New York club which approaches it is the Professional Woman's league.—New York Tribune.

Protection Against Dog Thieves.

Minnesota has a society for the protection of dogs from dog thieves. Its membership is over 300, and it protects over 500 dogs, mostly sportsmen's bird dogs. The society was organized as a result of the theft of valuable dogs from sportsmen whose hunting trips and the good work of their dogs had been related in a sportsmen's paper.

The society pays rewards only in rare instances, but it advertises and tries to secure the conviction of the thief. As a result "lost dog" advertisements have fallen off over 50 per cent in the daily newspapers of St. Paul. It is proposed to extend dog protection to every state.

2 O'CLOCK

A FATAL SHOCK

Terrific Explosion of Naptha Last Night.

VICTIMS TESTING A WATER GAS PLANT.

Clothes and Flesh Torn From Their Bodies.

West Upton, Mass., Nov. 11.—An explosion of naphtha in a resort used in connection with a water gas plant, at the straw factory of William Knowlton & Son, in this town, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, will result in the loss of three lives. The fatally injured are: Fred G. Bulmahan, aged 23; Thomas Williams, aged 30, and John Williams, aged 27. Charles Nelson and James Salham were injured, but will recover.

Mr. Bulmahan had just completed the installation, for William Knowlton & Son, of a water gas plant, at the cost of $25,000. This being a country town, the plant was lighted, in part, by gas made at the neighboring town of Grafton. Mr. Knowlton, Sr., was opposed to the water gas plant, but his son believed in it as an improvement and a good equipment. Mr. Bulmahan was testing the plant, when a naphtha valve sprung aleak, and the fluid ran down upon a heater. The naphtha ignited and an explosion instantly followed, shattering the windows and tearing a hole in the roof. The men were blown out of the building, and when picked up they were nearly nude. Of the three men who are fatally injured, the skin peeled from their faces and breast, presenting a sickening and heartrending sight. These men were taken to the Dyehouse, 50 feet away, and medical attendance summoned, Drs. Taber and Kurby of Upton and Maxwell of Grafton responding. It was impossible to render the men any aid, as death was only a question of a few hours. Professional nurses from the Worcester hospital were sent for.

Nelson and Salham were burned about the face and arms, and were able to return to their homes. The force of the explosion was of considerable extent, and that greater damage was not done is undoubtedly due to the fact that the gas plant was built in the substantially constructed brick shed, one story in height, and 20 by 30 feet in area.

The explosion was the worst accident ever occurring in this vicinity. It is quite probable that the gas plant will not be used, owing to this unfortunate affair and the objection of Mr. William Knowlton to it. The property damage, outside of the destruction of the resort, is not very heavy.

A Crazy Man's Antics.

Biddeford, Me., Nov. 11.—Joseph Archambault, aged 55, residing on King street, caused a scare in that neighborhood last night, by being suddenly attacked with a violent fit of insanity. He demolished furniture, drove his family from home, and then left the house himself and wandered about the streets. He went to the Boston and Maine western division station, threw himself on the track and thrashed about till covered with bruises. It required the combined efforts of four officers to overpower him.

Train Broke Apart.

Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 11.—A through freight from Boston to Portland broke apart near the Winter street crossing this morning. The break was about two cars back of the engine, and the rear section crashed into the forward section with such force as to derail eight cars. Brakeman Miller was sent to the hospital, badly hurt. Conductor Olney was able to resume work. The cars were heavily loaded, but the train was running at a slow rate of speed. The damage to rolling stock is about $5000.

Goes to Pratt.

Middleboro, Mass., Nov. 11.—The recount of votes for David G. Pratt (Rep.), for representative in the Seventh Plymouth district, gave him a gain of three, or a total majority of eight over Rev. W. C. Litchfield, who ran independently. In the canvasses, Mr. Pratt defeated Mr. Litchfield by five votes, and by the same number on the returns on election day. Mr. Litchfield then petitioned for the recount.

Wife Crazed by Husband's Suicide.

Boston, Nov. 11.—Frank Bertsch of Malden, a brass finisher out of work, missing since Saturday, was found dead yesterday in a Medford marsh, with a bullet hole in his head. He probably committed suicide through despondency. His wife is mentally unbalanced since his disappearance.

Again Before the Court.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 11.—The famous Porter-Ritch case, which has been before the superior court of this (Fairfield) county in one form or another for several years, was placed on trial yesterday. The most of the day was spent in wrangling between counsel, and but very little progress was made. The amount involved in the suit is about $250,000, which Timothy Porter claims he was induced to sign away all right and title to while he was held in durance, on the ground of insanity. The defendant, Thomas G. Ritch, denies the allegation, and denies that Porter has any legal claim on the property he sues to recover possession of. Porter's first wife was a daughter of the late J. B. Hoyt of Stamford. After her death, he began paying attention to a young woman named Earle of this city, and at this point his relatives had him restrained, on the ground that he was of unsound mind. After his release, he married Miss Earle.

Two Men Instantly Killed.

Greenfield, Mass., Nov. 11.—Three men were struck by an express on the Fitchburg railroad last night. They were attempting to board a special eastbound freight. Two of the men were instantly killed, and the third, Christopher Brogan of Worcester, fatally injured. The dead men are supposed to be Ford Baton of Peacedale, R. I., and John P. Phelan, residence unknown.

CITY COUNCIL.

Both Branches Held Meetings—Business Transacted.

The aldermen in special session sat down to a long and tedious job last evening when they began the recount in Wards 1, 5 and 6.

There were present at the meeting all the members except Mayor Courtney and Alderman Crowley.

There appeared to be but little interest taken in the matter for at the opening only Fisher H. Pearson, Matthew W. Mansfield, Major Rowell, J. A. Pattee, and Charles Dam were present.

City Clerk Dadman and Assistant Clerk McCarthy arranged the details incidental to the count and informed the city fathers that they should count the presidential electors and the candidates for congress and the legislature.

The counting began at 8 o'clock after Alderman Tryder had called to order and the counters sat around a large table in the center of the room. The counting progressed slowly.

COMMON COUNCIL.

The council came to order at 8.20 with 20 members present, and several petitions were referred to their proper committees in concurrence.

The communication from the city engineer certifying that McKinley and other avenues had been laid out as ordered and the resolution to lay out and accept these avenues, as in accordance with the new rule, had their final reading and were adopted.

The joint resolution to straighten Rogers street at the junction of Haines avenue was passed, and the resolution to expend money on the rifle range also.

A recess of 10 minutes was then taken to the ante-room.

The Manchester city council bowling game matter came up at the conclusion of the recess, and Councilmen Dunn, Hartwell and Eastman were appointed a committee to make preparations for the event.

Councilman Ereleth then reported progress on the matter of a bridge in Luudberg street over the Boston and Maine tracks.

Adjourned at 9.05 on motion of Councilman Miskella.

During the recess the council appointed Councilmen Dickson, Ereleth and Reynolds a committee to procure a suitable wedding gift for Mayor Courtney and all the members will attend.

COMMUNICATION.

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir:—In reply to Mr. Rafferty's communication in defense of Mr. Connelly I may say that that gentleman is but a "me too" to Connelly. He was favored with a seat on the platform at republican rallies at which Connelly spoke and he has no opinions on any question except what he obtains from Connelly. His mind has a canine turn as he represents your correspondent as a cur dog barking at a mastiff. In this case he is the "cur" that barks for the mastiff and he barks very indiscreetly. He asserts that all of my statements regarding Mr. Connelly "have no foundation."

I suppose the fact that I personally heard Mr. Connelly say he would be one of a party to go to Washington and kill the rulers would cause Mr. Rafferty to come out and say he could find hundreds including "curs" and "mastiffs" who did not hear him make any such statement. Now it is well known that Mr. Connelly was a candidate for democratic offices and failed to be recognized. Then he entered the ranks of the populists and soon ran for senator. Failing to be elected there but succeeding in defeating Peter J. Brady he was satisfied. There are many who hold the opinion to this day that Mr. Connelly, Mr. Rafferty and a few more were in collusion with the republican candidate when they put their populistic ticket in the field. The populists are for free silver, but how soon did Connelly drop his populism to enter the republican party, and how soon did Mr. Rafferty follow him! Mr. Connelly, I believe, was once honest in his efforts for labor organizations, but since he began to itch for public office he has considered only himself. If he could succeed, he would probably be another Senator Howard, who shouts for labor and at the same time lays in with the corporations. In other words, he works both sides and that is just what Connelly has started out to do and nothing Mr. Rafferty can say will change the facts. Truly Yours, LABOR.

MR. LABOUCHERE

Gives His Views Upon the Castles' Case.

TALKS OF THE U. S. DOLLAR-CRAZY

And Whacks "Munchausen Carner."

London, Nov. 11.—Mrs. W. M. Castle of San Francisco, who, upon pleading guilty of shoplifting, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, was discharged and restored to the care of her husband yesterday.

Henry Labouchere, in Truth, devotes 1½ pages to the Castles' case, during which, he says: I learn that a few magistrates favored a heavier sentence, and a few were for releasing the prisoner. Had she been released on the ground of mental infirmity, she would not have been the gainer; for she would have been sent to a criminal lunatic asylum, according to the law since 1883. The sentence seems to me light, considering the circumstances. I do not believe in kleptomania, for it only seems to attack the rich, and, if it really exists, I am sure that the punishment of every person stealing, while suffering therefrom, would have a very deterrent effect upon its spreading. Mrs. Castle got off cheaply, when told of her imprisonment for three months, without hard labor. The effect on her health seems improbable, for I gather she has been traveling in Europe and, except for the matter of stealing, her health was the same as anybody else's. Probably the regret for what she has done, and what has come to her for doing it, will weigh on her spirits; but, this is precisely the state of mind imprisonment is intended to produce in a prisoner, and if this regret really causes her to be sick, she will be transferred to a hospital, where she will be cared for by all connected with it.

The Castle case is remarkable for the many objects found in the Castles' trunks, stolen in Vienna. How were the custom houses passed on the journey to England? One would have thought that the officers would have been surprised to find such a large number of opera glasses and fans.

Continuing, Mr. Labouchere expresses surprise at the fact that Mr. Castle did not notice the collection of goods in their room at the Hotel Cecil, and adds: The child seems generally to have accompanied the mother when urged by her peculiar disease to go to a shop to pilfer. This child saw nothing.

Mr. Labouchere, after a sarcastic reference to the defense and acquittal of another wealthy woman for stealing hotel candlesticks, remarks: On the morning of Mrs. Castle's sentence, a seamstress and a governess were sentenced at the same session to nine and six months' hard labor, for stealing a fur necklet, and neither had ever been previously convicted. The governess fainted at the sentence, no medical experts testified they were kleptomaniacs, no eminent counsel suggested they would suffer in health by confinement, no one pitied them, and no one signed a petition to the home secretary to shorten their sentences. What matters how a poor fainting, friendless governess or half-starved seamstress suffers? Give them hard labor, and plenty of it. What if their health is injured? Let them die. Let Mrs. Castle out of prison, Sir Matthew White Ridley; she has moved in the best circles and she had no need to steal; but do not reduce the sentences of the seamstress and governess by a single day. The best circles knew them not. They are poor and helpless, which, in the opinion of all self-respecting persons, is in itself a crime.

Commenting on the recent election in the United States, Mr. Labouchere says: If Bryan had been wise, he would have gone in for bimetallism, if it pleased him; but he could have left the ratio indefinite. His ratio meant that right of all to repudiate half his obligations without thus bettering any one in the future. But the victors will do well to realize that apart from bimetallism there is a strong, growing feeling in America against huge accumulations of capital in the hands of individuals, obtained by the means of the trusts, which are really monopolies, and gambling with cogged dice in railroads. The greedy plutocracy, unsupported by an unarmed force, cannot long hold its own against the rights and well-being of all. I am nowise certain that had I been an American I should not have voted the Democratic ticket, had it not been that I regard all tampering with the coinage of a country as injurious to all, and it does not strike me that Mr. Bryan is up to the presidential mark.

America's worst product is its dollaracy, whose men have literally nothing to recommend them. The odds are that either they or their parents acquired huge fortunes by the most questionable means. As a rule, they are ignorant and vulgar, building big houses in order to dazzle by ostentatious entertainments, and buying pictures, for which they only care because they have been acquired at high prices, selling their souls to anyone who will enable them to hobnob with royalists, and their daughters to anyone who will confer a title upon them, despising their own country and institutions, and regarding themselves as in every respect superior to others on account of their dollars. If the United States is not to become a mere plutocratic and oligarchy power, these worthies, which have increased, and are increasing, must greatly diminish.

Truth also has an article, covering 1½ pages, headed, "The Munchausen of Monkeyland," dealing with Professor Garner (who claims to have distinguished words in a monkey language) and his book, repeating the old charges, made by Truth, of imposture, and declaring that the whole story of Professor Garner's adventures among the gorillas is an impudent humbug. The article suggests that the French missionaries at Fernanvas, to whom, it alleges, Professor Garner gave a promissory note for 500 francs for board and lodging, should sign a judgment in England on the unpaid bill, and should attach the proceeds of his book. Truth concludes that this would set at rest forever the question of where Professor Garner really spent those 100 days and nights.

POLITICAL NOTES.

☞ANY MAN pretending to be a democrat who, in public print or otherwise, opposes the election of a regular democratic nominee, or who repeatedly votes in the city council for republican candidates as against competent and worthy democrats, is a POLITICAL TRAITOR of the kind known in politics as A CUCKOO. No such man has any claim upon the democratic party for a nomination or election to any office.

Mr. Editor:—Would you kindly insert the following in your valuable paper: To my friends and fellow democrats who have so generously pushed forward my name for councilmanic honors in Ward 2, I desire to thank and also to express my feeling of regret, that owing to the work it involves at present and the after work if elected, I feel that I could not give the time that the office requires. Therefore, I believe that a man should not be a candidate for public office or public trust unless he can give his individual attention toward the development of good government and the promotion of the interests of his constituency. That time I have not at my disposal as I previously stated, consequently my declining to be a candidate for the councilmanic nomination.

Thanking the voters of Ward 2 again for the marked manifestions of their continued confidence. Signed,

Nov. 10, '96. T. H. MULDOON.

Editor Sun:

"Joe Miller wants to pose as a dictator," said a prominent republican to me while talking over the situation and upon hearing my request for an explanation said: "Miller controls 250 British American votes on which he can bank and he'll go to the convention with a certain number of delegates. When he sees how the fight is going and that he has no show himself he will throw his strength to the strongest candidate and throwing out his chest will say: 'I dictated who should be nominated.'"

"Are you going to vote for Miller?" asked the writer. "Not much, I want a straight republican or I don't vote." "Well, how about John Wilson?" "He's got the A. P. A. vote. I told you I want a straight republican or I cast a blank ballot.

And so Miller has the British-Americans and Wilson has the A. P. A.'s. I wonder who has the "Scotch-Irish" that we hear so much about and where they are to be found or do they segregate from the other factions? POLITICIAN.

Tomorrow night, friends of John C. Wilson will hold a rally in Good Templars hall on Gorham street.

The Young Men's republican club will probably hold a rally in Huntington hall after the mayoralty and aldermanic candidates are nominated.

Tomorrow night the friends of Mayor Courtney intend to have a monster meeting in Jackson hall to boom the mayor's candidacy. There will be speeches to show why Mayor Courtney should be the party's candidate, and his friends intend to make it a big gathering.

Dr. Martin of ward six, Willard Everett of ward eight, Dr. Thomas of ward three and Hugh Farley of ward five will be candidates for renomination to the school board.

Charles Kimball of ward six, Mr. Fletcher of ward nine and Henry Williams of ward eight are candidates for renomination to the board of overseers of the poor.

Of the democratic councilmen seven will seek renomination. Councilman John E. Sullivan is now located in Ward 9, a republican ward, and Councilman Maguire has served two terms. Those who want a renomination, which means re-election, are Councilmen Pendergast and Dunn, Ward 2; Miskella, Reynolds and Stephen O'Hare, Ward 4; Thornton John P. O'Hare, Ward 5.

It is said that Alderman Dow and Tucke can have a renomination if they desire it.

P. J. Custy who represented old Ward 5 as a democratic councilman, may be found in next year's city council as a republican from Ward 7.

It is said that this year's board of aldermen may be asked to determine the salary of the purchasing agent to be chosen at the municipal election. This is considered only fair and just, because then it cannot be said that the aldermen are influenced one way or the other, because the official may be a democrat or a republican.

Loyal Democracy.

Editor of the Sun:

Sir:—The national and state election having gone by with all its turmoil and excitement it behooves us now as the party of the new democracy, to take a survey of the situation and prepare for the municipal fight which is now close at hand, and in doing so it would be well to turn on the light and examine carefully the timber or material we will make use of in filling the different offices in our city government. The democracy in this city as well as elsewhere have had an uphill and enough experience in their late fight. The leaders were not in command. Neither did they contribute any of the sinews of war, nor did they even lend their sympathy in the struggle. Some of them were against us in the lines of the enemy, others were lukewarm blowing neither hot nor cold, resting on their arms whilst the rank and file stood the heat and brunt of the battle, falling behind the breastwork like good soldiers. Therefore, before entering on another campaign it is but natural that we should take a retrospect of the position, calling the backsliders to account and pass judgment upon their behavior in considering whether we shall further accept them as candidates for positions of honor in our local affairs. We presume that the people we refer to are now willing to be recognized as members of our household as belonging to the Bryan democracy when they have axes of their own to grind. Some having already begun to pull wires to get their names on the ticket, putting us under the chin to gain our favor and support.

Democratic voters pay no attention to their guff, recognize them not, even if we have to suffer this time the loss of the offices. They lent their assistance to bring about defeat on the state and national tickets.

Republicans were more to their liking than the nominees of our party—the regular democracy. Let us now retaliate like men by rejecting their services and have no further use for them until they have conformed with the conditions pronounced upon such by our defeated leader, viz: that they be requested to devote a reasonable time in the wood yard with the respectable occupation of "sawing wood." If the republicans were more satisfactory and good enough for them in the greater and more important affairs of the nation, we may also entrust them in the affairs of the city, if the course I suggest would cause our defeat.

Attend the caucus. Select your men out of the 4500 of the faithful and we will use our endeavors to elect them, and if so it will be a lesson to the goldpluckers and timeservers that they will not soon or readily forget.

H. HAMER.

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir:—Permit me to say a few words in your valuable paper for the benefit of the voters of ward five (5). We have many names of good men desiring the honors of a member of the common council. One of them is Geo. A. Farley who is well known by all voters of the city to be a man among men. He is fair in his action to all. Being a life long resident of the city he certainly has the best interest of not only ward 5 but the city of Lowell at heart. As a friend of the laboring class and as a citizen he has done all in his power to advance their cause and if the voters of ward 5 choose a man that knows the wants of ward 5 and the city of Lowell he will do all in his power to help advance the city of Lowell as well as protecting the interest of all citizens. Let the voters of ward 5 turn out at the democratic caucus Thursday, Nov. 19 and vote for Geo. A. Farley of ward 5. A VOTER.

"There are fads in medicine as well as in other things," said a busy druggist, "but the most remarkable thing about Hood's Sarsaparilla is that customers who try other remedies all come back to Hood's, and this is why the enormous sales of this great medicine keep up while others come to and in a short time go out of sight entirely.

"Why is it?" "O, simply because Hood's Sarsaparilla has more real curative merit than any medicine I ever sold."

This is of daily occurrence in almost every drug store. Hood's Sarsaparilla has cured more sickness, and made more happiness through restoration to health than any other medicine.

ANY MAN pretending to be a democrat who, in public print or otherwise, opposes the election of a regular democratic nominee, or who repeatedly votes in the city council for republican candidates as against competent and worthy democrats, is a POLITICAL TRAITOR of the kind known in politics as A CUCKOO. No such man has any claim upon the democratic party for a nomination or election to any office.

It is not expected that the silver issue will enter into the municipal campaign to any great extent.

A democratic cuckoo who betrays his party once will do it again. The cuckoo is always the same old bird. Look out for him.

There is a great effort being made in Boston to count out Councillor Allen, the "culled gentleman" in favor of Sullivan, who hold the position last year.

The local Sunday paper, which it is alleged is run by Mr. Knox and some of his heelers, should print the Goodwin murder story and the switchboard theft for the edification of its readers.

George H. Marston is usurping Joe Miller's title as the business man's candidate for mayor. Alderman Tryder and Col. Bennett are also in the race but they will all got left as a democrat will be elected.

The local parties are expected to nominate their respective candidates for purchasing agent in their mayoralty conventions. The office seems to be considered as important as the mayoralty and more important than that of license commissioner.

Why bestow the honors of a democratic nomination upon traitors when good, straight, honest democrats are asking for it. Is there no reward for party fealty in the local democracy? Must a man be a cuckoo to get recognition from the democrats of Lowell?

The people have long since given up hope of anything like a patriotic foreign policy by this administration.—Mail.

When the present administration came out boldly for the Monroe Doctrine, the Mail joined the list of pro-British papers that deprecated any rupture with England. The same wheedling organ condemns the government for enforcing the law against the Cuban filibusterers when the alternative is war with Spain. If anybody else encouraged law breaking the Mail would call it anarchy. Such is the consistency that reigns in the Mail office.

THE FINANCIERS HAVE CONFIDENCE.

The influx of gold to the United States treasury proves the truth of Mr. Bryan's claim that the gold of the country can be cornered by a coterie of financiers. That it comes in now is but a proof that it may go out as quickly just as the syndicates which are backing Hanna see fit. They can fill the treasury or deplete it at will and thus cause a fictitious appearance of prosperity or a panic. This is but another proof that the basis of our circulating medium is too small. Under a bimetallic basis the speculators would be unable to control the treasury as they do at present and they could not, therefore, cause a financial panic whenever it may be to their advantage to do so. We are told that this influx of gold indicates confidence. The financiers are confident as they have a right to be, because they are in full charge of the government.

THE MAYORALTY.

The republicans are at sea on the mayoralty question. Miller is the leader and close behind come Wilson, Marston, Tryder, Bennett, Lawton and Hutchinson. Upon none of these candidates has the republican sentiment centred, so that it is safe to say none of them would be elected if nominated.

Should the friends of Mr. Hutchinson urge his candidacy, the Millerites would raise a howl and set out to defeat him. The republican city committee is in the hands of Miller's friends who can force his nomination in the face of all opposition.

Many republicans threaten to bolt, but they will probably turn and vote for the democratic candidate as they have done for the past two years. The opposition to Miller propose a popular method of nomination, such as was tried in Lawrence last year. It provides for caucuses from 2 to 10 p. m. and that the candidate who receives the largest number of votes be nominated. That plan worked well in Lawrence and it would be interesting to see it tried here. It is certain that if such a method of nominating were adopted here, Mr. Miller would find himself out of the fight.

On the democratic side the fight rests between Hon. Fisher H. Pearson and the present incumbent, William F. Courtney. The people alone can decide this contest and it is right that it should be placed fairly before them. It is important that no ill feeling be engendered to operate against the election of the nominee.

THE ORATOR WAS SEIZED AND BORNE AROUND THE HALL.

THE CAMPAIGN CLUB

HON. HENSHAW PRICE DISCRIBES M'KINLEY AS A BOY.

Effect of the Tariff on Bear's Oil and Coon Skins as Orator Price Sees It—An Abjuration to Say Nothing, but Saw Wood For a Time.

When the club had been called to order at its regular Saturday night meeting, Brother Gardner announced that the Hon. Henshaw Price, better known as "the Kentucky Spring Chicken," had arrived in town and would speak before the club. He hoped the speaker would receive a cordial welcome, and yet he advised that no one lend him any money or encourage him to think he could find a job if he hung around. Samuel Shin, who has the whooping cough at the age of 42, was warned that he must stop coughing or leave the hall, and Shindig Watkins was given to understand that if he got too excited and broke a lamp he would be liable to a fine which would keep him struggling for the next hundred years.

Mr. Henshaw proved to be a man past the middle age, black as the ace of spades, and his heels and ears were the most prominent parts of his anatomy. He had evidently covered a good many miles of highway and slept under a good many haystacks, but as soon as he reached the platform he sort of shook himself together and made a favorable impression.

"My frens," began the orator in a voice as ripe as a November pumpkin, "I am gwine to spoke to yo' tonight about de Republican candydate. I could begin an tell yo' 'bout de garden of Eden an consume fo'teen days of yo'r waluable time gittin down to de present date, but I shall plunge at once into my subjick. A great party has nominated a sarvin man fur de presidency. He may git dar, an he may not, but do people want to know 'bout him jist de same. I has knowed Billy McKinley since he was bo'n. Fur de fust ten y'ars of his life my wife was de lady who washed fur his mudder, an I was the gem'lan who worked in his fadder's garden. [Applause.] I watched dat boy wid keerful eye to see what dere was in him, an I was disapp'inted. He wasn't 6 y'ars ole when he frowed a stone an killed my dawg. [Groans.] A y'ar later he sneaked into my truck patch one day an kicked de stuffin outer 50 big squashes an fo' hundred cowcumbers, an den hid it off on annodder boy. [Shouts of "Shame! Shame!"]

"Let any cull'd man in dis kintry go to Mistah McKinley's house tomorrer an ax him if he wanted a stove blacked or a collin whitewashed, an he would yell in reply, 'Now, yo' coon, yo' skate outer dis, or I'll burn yo'r heels.' [Shouts of indignation from all over the hall.] If yo' wanted fo'teen dollars an went to Mistah McKinley to borrow it, how would he meet yo? Would he smile an shake hands an pull out de money same as George Washington or Patrick Henry or Henry Clay an tell yo' to come back if yo' wanted 20 mo'? No, sah, not much! He would gin yo' one awful look outer his left eye, an den catch yo' by de front an frow yo' sky high an laugh an chuckle as yo'r remains struck de airth. [Wild yells of rage and horror.]

"Of co'se yo' hev all heard about de McKinley tariff," continued the speaker, who was now thoroughly warmed up. "Folks call him a great man kase he got up a tariff dat helped pore folks. I know all 'bout dat tariff. I met him in de road one day, an as he happened to be good natured he axed me fur a chaw of 'terbacker an said he was gittin up a tariff dat would save de pull'd people of dis kentry millyuns of dollars a y'ar. Has it dun so? ["No! No!"] Not by a jug full! While dat tariff 'pears to be all right in theory, how am it in practice? Fur instance, I use a bottle of b'arlio on my ha'r every week. Befo' dat tariff took place de price was two shillin's a bottle. Sense dat tariff it am twenty-eight cents an jumpin along like prairie fire. Three y'ars ago a 'possum pelt or coon skin was worth fo'ty cents. De price today am only thirty, an de buyer wants yo' to take it out in soap at dat! [Groans and catcalls.] If I went some nlum to hold in my mouf, I find dat de price has doubled. Three y'ars ago a man in Louisville offered me a diamond pin fur two dollars an a half. De odder day he axed me 'leben dollars fur dat same sparkler. [Groans.] Dat's how de tariff has helped de pore folks of dis kentry.

"Men ob dis campaign club," said the orator as he drew himself up and struck an attitude, "dean't be in a hurry to pledge yo'rselves to any pertickler candydate. Dean't go around sayin yo' ar' a Republican, a Democrat a Silverite or a Populist. Yo' jist kep still till de cat cums to de cand of de fence an den watch her jump. What we want as a race am a president dat will give us $100 bicycles fur $50. We want N. O. molusses fur fifteen cents a gallon. We want 'taters fur ten cents a bushel, an codfish so cheap dat de grocer will pay yo' to take it away. We want wages to go up an house rent to come down, an if any of yo' has an old mewl to sell yo' want to know dat we hev a government which will buy him fur $50 spot cash. Wait! Watch! Say nuffin, but saw wood."

At the close of his address the orator was seized by the enthusiastic audience and borne around the hall in triumph, and it was not until six policemen had made their way up stairs that order was restored and the meeting adjourned. M. QUAD.

TWO SONS OF GRIEF.

Losing Their Wives Was Hard, but They Were Getting Reconciled.

The one was a man about 60 years old, with a satchel on his knees. The other was a man of about the same age, with a satchel between his feet. They sat opposite each other in the street car, and each had a mourning band on his hat. By and by they happened to look at each other, and a fellow feeling welled up in their hearts at once.

"I take it," said No. 1 as he leaned across the aisle, "that your beloved wife has departed from this cold world."

"She has," was the reply. "You also seem to have suffered the same sorrow."

"Test the same. Yes, my wife has been laid away to rest. It comes hard, don't it?"

"Powerful hard. Did you feel as if you wanted to go too?"

"I did. I purty nigh committed suicide."

"So did I. Did you git over that feelin after about three months?"

"Wal, sorter."

"Same with me. You fust thought you'd buy a $100 mavestun, didn't you?"

"That was exactly my figger."

"Same here. Got one yit?"

"Nonp."

"Neither hev I. How much you goin to pay when you do git one?"

"About $15."

"That's my figger. Did it seem to you fur the fust six months as if you could never marry agin?"

"It did."

"Same with me. Then you kinder had a feelin that it was your doety?"

"That's it—that's it."

"Same with me. Then you begun to cast yer eye aroun fur a widder?"

"Sure's you live, I did."

"Same with me. And you found one?"

"I did, and I'm goin to be married next week."

"Same with me. And if we happen to run across each other on our bridal towers, let's poke each other in the ribs and knock off hats and drink a lot of ginger ale and hev fun together."—New York Sunday Journal.

BULLET IN HIS BRAIN.

Misce Was Tired of Life, but Couldn't Kill Himself.

A peculiar case was begun in the superior court in Santa Rosa, Cal., the other day by Fred Misce. It is for the purpose of having his brother, John Misce, who is now in an insane asylum, declared sane.

John Misce enjoys the distinction of being the only man in this part of the state who wears a large sized bullet in his head, and he has enjoyed that distinction for two years. Two years ago he became tired of life, and taking a 44-caliber revolver he placed it within a few inches of his forehead and fired. The ball made a hole almost as big as the end of a man's thumb, and why it did not kill him is a mystery to medical men here.

He was laid up a few weeks, but finally surprised his old companions by appearing among them. The physicians did not probe for the ball, fearing that they would strike the brain, and so it has never been disturbed. It was their belief that the cartridge was not a very strong one, and that after it penetrated the skull the ball dropped down between the brain and the skull. About a year ago he showed signs of insanity, and when he was examined the physician ascribed his condition to the presence of the bullet so near his brain. Now it is claimed that he is well again.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

Not many years ago, according to the annals of the India office, a queen's messenger or some other inferior official was robbed, though not injured in any way, on his road to Kabul, and the British government, of course, wrote to complain of it. No reply was received for months, but at last the ensir wrote: "The matter you mention has been thoroughly investigated, and not only have the robbers of your messenger been put to death, but all their children, as well as their fathers and grandfathers. I hope this will give satisfaction to her majesty the queen."—Argonaut.

"Didn't you hit me first?"

"No, I didn't. You dodged."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

VIEWS OF A BACHELOR.

What This Sage Says About Men, Women and Matrimony.

Marriage is the Keeley cure of love.

A girl can't look at a mouse in a cage without getting creepy around the ankles.

A man always trys to look amused when he reads the woman's page of a newspaper in the street car.

Women always wear a lot of funny clothes because they think it makes them seem more of a mystery to a man.

A woman is awfully proud when she thinks she had made something out of some turkey red muslin and a dry goods box.

A woman can never really enjoy a vacation because she is all the time wondering if she will find any signs of moths when she gets home.

Pretty tooth are very often as the foundation of a girl's reputation for jollity.

Women may claim that they like a man who always keeps his temper, but they don't.

There are some women who never find occasion to bewail the passing of the days of chivalry.

Some girls' mothers must be forgetful, or else they were so good when they were young that they didn't need watching.

Some women think that making a man a good wife means making him wear a piece of red flannel around his neck when he has a sore throat.

The woman who always has something good to say about people gets awfully monotonous.

Girls like to talk of their "modiste," because it sounds more expensive than "dressmaker."

A woman can never be mean to a man who can make the tears come into his eyes when he wants to.

If a man doesn't get engaged before he is old enough, he waits till he is too old.

If women were judged by other women, there wouldn't be many female angels.

The nearer a girl sits to a man the more of a faraway look she gets in her eyes.

A woman can never understand why men don't like to nurse sick people and go to funerals.

Very few men who fall down in a public place have the grit not to look around and smile as if they enjoyed it.

When a man is naturally thin and cadaverous, he calls himself wiry.

I wonder why girls seem to like to kiss the silky fur of a cat so much.

Men raise their hats less often as they grow older, because they have less hair.

Some women's idea of culture is to wear a lorgnette and use smelling salts in a street car.

A woman always insists on leaving a piece of cold oilcloth around somewhere where a man will step on it with his bare feet in the dark.

Up to the time she is 18 a girl often wonders if she will ever know as much as her mother. After that her mother is apt to wonder if she knows as much as she does.—New York Press.

He Knew.

The new woman orator waxed eloquent.

"And what," she demanded as she came to the climax, "is to be the result of our emancipation?"

She looked around with the calm assurance of one who had asked a poser, and this was too much for the little man who was waiting for his wife in a far corner of the hall.

"I know," he shouted.

"Ah," returned the new woman on the platform scornfully, "the little man with the bald head thinks he has solved the problem that we came here to discuss this afternoon. We will gladly give our attention while he tells us what is to be the result."

"Cold dinners and ragged children," roared the little man.—Chicago Post.

A Dollar a Year.

A brawny Swede visited Marriage Clerk Salmonson's office the other day and inquired the price of a license. He was informed that the precious document would cost him $1. Drawing from his pocket a sock, he slowly counted out in nickels, dimes and pennies $2 and pushed the pile of coins across the counter.

"You've made a mistake here," said Clerk Salmonson, "and given me too much money. The license costs only $1."

"Dot's all right," replied the Swede complacently. "Ay tank Ay know Christina purt well. Ay tak my chances two year, anyhow."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Unhappy Man.

"That yelling Smithers young one kept me awake all night," growled the bachelor boarder.

"I suppose it is annoying," said the sympathetic landlady, "but you must remember, Mr. Cross, that you were a baby once on a time yourself."

"Mebbe I was," growled the bachelor boarder, "but I hoped I had succeeded in living it down."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wastefulness.

"I wish," said Mr. Stormington Barnes, "that people, however much they may be moved to indignation, would not throw eggs."

"Yes," replied the leading man, "it's a very bad practice. Even if the eggs are good to start with, the concussion spoils them for culinary purposes."—Washington Star.

SEA DOG'S PLUCK

Saved Armenians From the Merciless Turks.

THEY TOOK REFUGE ON BRITISH BOAT.

Backed Up By U. S. Admiral Selfridge.

New York, Nov. 11.—Steamship Boyne of the Mercantile Steamship company of London arrived in port, from Gibraltar and Mediterranean ports, yesterday. Captain Fischer told a remarkable story to Collector of the Port Kilbreath of the customs department, as to why he had entered port without a manifest.

ADMIRAL SELFRIDGE.

The British steamship Boyne lay at anchor off Smyrna, Turkey in Asia, on Oct. 10. There had been several riots in Smyrna for three or four days before. The din of another conflict reached the ears of the Boyne's captain about 7 o'clock in the evening, and the cries of the victims of the assassins came over the water. An hour afterward, a small boat came up to the side of the British steamship, and an aged man begged permission to go aboard. With him were six others, three of them women, all Armenian refugees. Captain Fischer assented. He fed them, cared for them, and gave them the protection of his flag. Fischer said he was bound for America, and in order to be on the safe side, the refugees were registered as passengers.

Not long afterward, a boatload of Turks, under an officer, rowed up alongside, and the forces came aboard. Captain Fischer admitted that he had the refugees on his vessel, but refused to deliver them over. He drew up his crew of brawny men, and the Turkish officer said he would give the Britisher until morning to turn over the Armenians. After the Turks had left his vessel, Captain Fischer manned a boat, and moved stealthily away from the ship, to secure assistance. He visited an Italian man-of-war, but the commander denied his right or wish to interfere, as he was there to protect the subjects of King Humbert, he said.

Captain Fischer had at length to give up the search, and, returning to his vessel, made all preparations for a run for it. When dawn came, however, out of the mists, away down the bay, the outlines of a white hull appeared. The great white stranger was the United States warship Minneapolis. The British flag was sent swinging out upside down, and the Minneapolis' lookout saw the signal of distress. Captain Fischer put off in a small boat, and was royally received. He told his story, and Admiral Thomas Q. Selfridge, Jr., commandant of the European squardon, said:

"We'll give you all the assistance you want. You'll take these refugees safely out of this port if I've got to bombard the town," and the admiral ordered off the barge with a detail of marines and blue-jackets, over to the British ship, with orders to hold her safe from attack. Then the American consul was sent for, and it was agreed that the Boyne should sail at once, under the escort of the Minneapolis. Soon bloody Smyrna was many miles behind, but the captain had forgotten his manifest. Captain Fischer added that he had landed the Armenians at Ellis island yesterday.

Two Forgers In Custody.

Boston, Nov. 11.—Joseph F. Averill of Cambridge and Ernest H. Leonard of Providence were arrested yesterday for passing forged orders for goods on almost all the principal wholesale firms in the oil, hardware and trunk business in this city. The men confessed to passing over 20 orders during the last month. The forged orders were always for a small amount of goods, purported to be ordered by retail dealers and builders, and the men have been very successful.

Three Deaths Will Result.

West Upton, Mass., Nov. 11.—An explosion of naphtha in a resort used in connection with a water gas plant, at the straw factory of William Knowlton & Son, in this town, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, will result in the loss of three lives. The fatally injured are: Fred G Bulmahan, aged 23; Thomas Williams, aged 30, and John Williams, aged 27. Charles Nelson and James Salham were injured, but will recover.

Circus Interfered With Politics.

Atlanta, Nov. 11.—The Democratic caucus for United States senator adjourned last night at the conclusion of the 23d ballot. The result of this ballot was as follows: A. S. Clay, 53; W. Y. Atkinson, 52; Lewis, 15, and Howell, 40. The adjournment was effected in order to let the legislators hear from their constituents, and to give them a chance to see the circus today.

Afraid of American "Cartwheels."

London, Nov. 11.—A Vienna dispatch to The Times, alluding to Russia's efforts to secure trade in China, says that Russian silver roubles are being minted in large quantities for circulation in China, in view of the fact that Chinese confidence in the American silver dollar has been somewhat shaken.

AYER'S HAIR VIGOR PRESERVES THE Natural Color of the Hair

MEN OF BOTH PARTIES.

Congratulate Chairman Hanna Upon Success of the Campaign.

New York, Nov. 11.—A luncheon in honor of Mark A. Hanna was given here yesterday. The host was Isaac N. Seligman of the banking house of J. & W. Seligman, and the guests included a number of the most prominent business men and financiers in the city. More than 30 guests sat at the table.

When the time for speaking came, Isaac N. Seligman addressed the company briefly upon the situation which led to the gathering. He especially emphasized the urgent necessity for joint action in the future by the Republicans and National Democrats upon currency matters. He then called upon Mr. Hanna, who said that he felt that he was addressing an important body of New York bankers, and he spoke of the general work of the campaign. The present organization of the Republican party, and also of the National Democratic party, he understood, would remain in the field to further the good work so auspiciously begun. Mr. Hanna said also that the new administration would begin its work without any pledges, and wholly untrammelled in the selection of a cabinet, a statement which was heartily applauded. Mr. Hanna said that he hoped they would be able to enlist all good citizens in the cause represented by the national banner.

Ex-Mayor Hewitt congratulated Mr. Hanna upon the generalship which he had displayed, and paid a high compliment to Major McKinley. He concluded by asking that he be permitted to enroll himself under the banner of the National Democratic party, and he unanimously did toast the success of the incoming administration, to which he pledged the support of himself and of all patriotic Democrats.

General Porter, Carl Schurz and several others also spoke. The burden of these addresses was that after so many years of stormy discussion, the country needed an absolute rest from political agitation.

A Knockout For Receivership.

Topeka, Nov. 11.—Judge Horton, who was retained by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company in the alien land act receivership case, yesterday made the important discovery that the act upon which the present case is based was not constitutionally passed by the legislature, and that, therefore, it is of no effect. This fact, alone, it is said, will end the receivership matter most effectually. Judge Horton finds the fatal defect in the house journal of 1891, which does not record that the house adopted the bill by a yea and nay vote, as the constitution requires. It is said that there are 13 acts defective in the same way among the session laws of 1891.

Hurt by Farmer's Alliance.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The 30th annual session of the National Grange, patrons of husbandry, met here today. General Secretary Trimble and Master Brigham delivered addresses, and these were followed by reports of officers. General Secretary Trimble says the year has been an exceedingly prosperous one for the grange, during which 169 subordinate granges have been organized, as against only 92 the previous year. The grange, however, he says, is not so strong now as 20 years ago, because the Farmers' alliance hurt the association very much in the south. The latter association is political, he says, while the grange is not.

Successful Initial Dip.

Baltimore, Nov. 11.—Torpedo boat No. 4, the second of the three built at the Columbian iron works for the United States navy, was launched yesterday. The vessel is an exact counterpart of No. 3, which was launched at the iron works Oct. 1. The launch was in every way a perfect success. The new fighting craft was christened No. 4 by Miss Eliza Agnus, daughter of General Felix Agnus. In breaking a bottle of wine over the bow of the new boat, Miss Agnus expressed the hope that its mission should be the bringing of peace in time of war, and to prevent war in time of peace.

Suffocated by Gas.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—Louis Doerfel, aged 67, and Bertha Miller, aged 4, were suffocated by gas at the former's home last night. Magdalena Doerfel, the aged wife of the dead man, is hovering between life and death. They were found lying upon the floor of the kitchen. It is supposed that while Mrs. Doerfel was ironing, her dress caught the stopcock of a gas stove in the room, and turned on the deadly fluid. Doerfel had practically lost the sense of smell, and his wife was suffering from a violent cold, so that neither could detect the presence of the gas in the room, and were unaware of it until they toppled over.

A Far Reaching Scheme.

Cleveland, Nov. 11.—It is definitely announced that the immense International Street Railway syndicate, recently formed, will operate in New York, as well as in London, Paris and other European cities. Compressed air has been finally decided upon as the power to be used. A number of directors of the Seamless Tube company, that will manufacture the reservoirs for the compressed air, are looking into the feasibility of building their immense new factory in this city.

Now Belongs to Uncle Sam.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The United States yesterday became the owner of the property on Tenth street, in which Abraham Lincoln died. The house is situated directly opposite the old Ford's theater, and it was there Lincoln was carried after the assassination, and there he died. The house has lately been occupied by the Lincoln Memorial association as a museum of relics of the martyred president, and it was for the purpose of perpetuating this museum that congress appropriated $30,000 for the purchase of the property.

Against "Tariff For Trusts."

Sioux Falls, Nov. 11.—Senator Pettigrew opened the campaign of 1900 here, when he addressed the largest audience ever gathered in this city. It was announced as the beginning of the bimetallic fight of four years hence. The senator said he would render McKinley every aid possible for him to demonstrate that the tariff was what ailed the country, but he wanted to put himself on record by saying he would resist every section of a tariff bill that provided for a tariff on any article controlled by a trust.

State Secrets Revealed.

London, Nov. 13.—In the course of a speech at Enfield last evening, Sir Charles Dilke, an authority on international politics, said that England had recently rejected a proposal by the three great powers to partition China. He also said that the alleged recent inspection of the forts of the Dardanelles by a Russian general was by order of the Russian government, and that, therefore, it was probable that Russia would regard a British attack on the Dardanelles as a casus belli.

MAJOR McKINLEY

Visited Continuously at His Home.

MANY BRING FLOWERS AS GIFTS TO FAMILY.

The Delegations Come From All Points.

Canton, O., Nov. 11.—Governor Pingree of Michigan, accompanied by Colonel John Atkinson of Detroit, a Michigan elector and senator-elect, spent two hours with President-elect McKinley yesterday afternoon. They came to Canton evidently to talk over Michigan affairs, as connected with the coming national administration. To a reporter, Mr. Pingree said there has never been any doubt about Michigan. He said the tariff question was the issue upon which the Republicans carried the state. When asked if Michigan had any candidate for cabinet positions, Colonel Atkinson winked one eye at the reporter, and the other at Mr. Pingree, when he replied that Michigan had a great many people in her borders.

Another caller yesterday was Mr. William C. Beer of New York, manager of the National Surety company. The steady stream of visitors continued all day. The chief of the Chicago speakers' bureau, William M. Hahn, remained for dinner, before leaving for home last night.

It is now expected that Major McKinley will leave, with his wife, for Cleveland on Friday, if her health permits. She has not gained in strength as rapidly as was hoped. Major McKinley appears in robust health. He was at his best as he chatted with his friends in the library last night. At the same time it is very evident that no man could pass through the work and strain of months past without suffering a relaxation, although his callers can see no sign of it.

Every hour brings to the house remembrances from friends in all parts of the country. Flowers are banked up in beautiful clusters all over the house. Chairs, canes, horseshoes, souvenir medallions and badges, roosters, eagles and all sorts of offerings have arrived by express, and give some rooms in the house an appearance of old curiosity shops, combined with a rare collection of curios and a flower show. These presents are, many of them, carried to Mrs. McKinley, who regards them with great interest, when able to see them. She spent most of the day on a couch in her room, and her devoted and ever watchful husband, makes 100 trips a day across the hall, to see to her comfort and welfare. No matter who the caller be, nothing is allowed to prevent his frequent presence at the side of Mrs. McKinley. He also finds time to call on his mother, nearly a mile away, every day, and the charming old lady, 87 years of age, makes frequent trips in her one-horse surrey to the historic house of her son.

Chauncey M. Depew's congratulations came in an autograph letter yesterday.

The following letter was yesterday received by Major McKinley from ex-President Harrison: "The use of the mails instead of the wires as the carrier of my congratulations does not imply that they are less, but rather that they are more thoughtful and deliberate. It is a great honor, indeed, when a personal success is identified with a great national triumph. The issues forced to the front by the Chicago platform put the fight on such lines that the Republican party could use the old breastworks and make an unfailing appeal to the patriotism of the south as well as the north. I sincerely hope that you may be given the wisdom and strength needed in this emergency to restore and establish the prosperity of the nation."

Among the arrivals in the city last night were Chairman Roberts of the Kentucky Republican committee and Secretary of State McTaylor of Ohio.

THANKS GOLD DEMOCRATS

But Senator Hoar Thinks That Republicans Should not be Forgotten.

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 11.—The Young Men's Republican club of Worcester celebrated the election of McKinley and Hobart last evening, by a banquet. Charles T. Tatman presided, and, with him at the head of the table, were seated a number of other Republican leaders. In the course of a speech, Senator Hoar said the result of the election furnished an occasion for thanksgiving to Almighty God. This country is now about to start on a new career of prosperity and glory. The music of the factory, the voice of the well-paid workman, and the confidence of the business man will furnish subjects for congratulation. But, after all, the chief cause for congratulation is found in the fact that this nation has been saved from an act of dishonor. It were far better if every factory in Massachusetts were closed, and every workman sent back to get his living, as did our forefathers, from the soil and the sea, and that every dollar of accumulated wealth perished, than that this great, free, noble republic should engage in a grand act of swindling and national bankruptcy. The success of Bryan would have been a disgrace to the American flag, a dishonor to the American name.

"We do well to praise those patriotic Democrats who left their party and came to our aid," said Mr. Hoar, "but we must not forget that the Republicans had something to do with the result of the election. The victory was won by men who swept the country two years ago. We honor the Democrats who left their party, but we cannot help remarking that if a man wants to ward off a blow aimed at the honor of his country he must leave the Democratic party to do it, and if he wants to strike a blow at the honor and prosperity of the country, he must leave the Republican party to do it."

Mr. Hoar said that he saw new hope of a permanent adjustment of the tariff in the history of the past four years. "The Democrats are as thoroughly committed to the principle of protection as are the Republicans," he said. "The secret of the victory in the campaign just closed lies not in the influence of the national banks and money corporations, but it was the savings banks, with their $466,000,000 of invested savings, not more than $1500 of which was deposited by a single individual, that gave the 150,000 majority for McKinley in Massachusetts."

LABORING MEN PROTEST.

Against Alleged Discrimination In Selecting Grand Jurors.

New York, Nov. 11.—Knights of Labor and the American Federation of Labor, through their officers, have demanded a revision of the lists from which the grand jurors of the country are selected. The labor organizations allege that too many capitalists and too few workingmen are on the lists to insure justice. Both the organizations yesterday sent to the board of commissioners of grand jurors a memorial, containing a list of members of the two organizations who, it is claimed, are eligible as grand jurors. A demand was made that these men be placed on the lists, to represent labor interests.

The memorials are the result of a careful watching of the doings of the grand jury for several months by members of the two organizations. The disposition of cases involving corporations before the grand jury was followed with interest. A few weeks ago Secretary Kelly of district assembly 49 wrote to District Attorney Fellows, enclosing a list of over 23 persons killed on the tracks of the New York Central railroad within the city limits, and asking what steps had been taken by the district attorney's office toward making this company provide better safeguards for the preservation of human life. The men killed, Mr. Kelly said, were mainly employes of the company. District Attorney Fellows, through his secretary, Henry W. Unger, replied to this communication, stating that the cases had been submitted to several grand juries, who, after investigation, had dismissed the complaints.

This reply angered the members of district assembly 49, and when the matter was considered in executive session, it was unanimously decided to employ counsel and, if necessary, to compel the representation of the laboring classes on the grand jury. When the grand jury for this month was sworn in by Judge Newburger, and the list disclosed that all selected were wealthy men, the matter was brought to a head by the memorials and demand agreed upon.

Cheese Shippers Evading the Law.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Complaints have reached the Canadian agricultural department recently of the arrival of consignments of "filled" cheese at Liverpool, from Chicago via Montreal, the boxes not being branded. Extra inspectors were appointed at Montreal, to watch all through consignments, and to prevent the shipment of that class of cheese unless it is branded as such. Saturday last a consignment of 177 boxes, from Chicago for Glasgow, was discovered and held. The authorities at Washington have been notified of the seizure, and have been asked to take action against the shippers for not branding the cheese as the law requires.

Concessions to Catholics.

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—Official announcement of the terms on which the parochial school question has been settled is still delayed, owing to Premier Greenway's absence, but everything is so definitely arranged that his ministers are not now so closely guarding the secret. The chief concession is that half an hour each day in the national or public schools will be set apart for religious instruction. Another concession is that in districts where there is any considerable percentage of French Catholic children, the French language shall be taught, as well as the English. Official announcement of the terms of settlement is expected to morrow.

Lynching Avoided.

Richmond, Mo., Nov. 11.—After the sheriff had in vain tried to persuade the mob that surrounded the jail, trying to get at and lynch Jesse Winner and Lon Lackey, charged with the murder of Mrs. Eva Winner and her two children, John Sharp, a brother of the woman addressed the would-be lynchers. While he wanted the murderers punished, he wanted the punishment to come through legal process of law, if possible. His talk finally had a good effect, and within an hour afterward, the crowd scattered. It is believed no further attempt at lynching will be made.

I. w. on Her Trial Trip.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—The new United States battleship Iowa steamed down the Delaware river yesterday, for her builders' trial in the Atlantic, off the Delaware capes. The ship is almost completed, and the trip is for the purpose of testing the stability of her hull and machinery. While she is away, a test of her speed may also be made, although there is no doubt of the ship's ability to exceed the speed requirement of 16 knots an hour. The trial is entirely private, and the Cramps have sole charge, the government being represented by only one officer.

"Official" Report of Victory.

Madrid, Nov. 11.—News from Manilla is to the effect that the Spaniards have had a brilliant victory over the rebels, and have captured their strongly fortified position at Noveleta after desperate fighting. The rebels had 400 killed, and the Spanish loss was 33 killed, according to the official report.

Two Burned to Death.

Perrinton, Mich., Nov. 11.—The residence of Sandy Campbell, four miles from this place, was burned to the ground yesterday, burning to death Mr. Campbell's cousin, a youth, 19 years of age, and Mr. Campbell's two children, aged 2 and 6 years. One child escaped by jumping from the window.

The Latest Armenian Massacre.

London, Nov. 11.—The Daily News' Constantinople correspondent says: The Everek massacre lasted from noon of Friday, Oct. 30, till Saturday night, when it was stopped by the troops from Cesarea, (Kaisren). The Armenians say that 300 persons were killed.

Smallpox at Holyoke.

Holyoke, Mass., Nov. 11.—A case of smallpox was reported to the city physician last night. The patient is a boy in a Fountain street tenement, and the place has been quarantined.

Honored by the Kaiser.

City of Mexico, Nov. 11.—Baron Von Ketteler, German minister to Mexico, in the name of the German emperor, yesterday presented General Diaz with the order of the Red Eagle of Prussia, and the order of Prussian Crown to Minister of Foreign Relations Mariscal and Minister of Finance Limantour. A very brilliant assemblage witnessed the ceremony, and the German minister appeared in court costume.

Had Much to do With the Release of Unfortunate Mrs. Castles.

London, Nov. 11.—Mrs. W. M. Castle of San Francisco, who, upon pleading guilty of shoplifting, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, was discharged and restored to the care of her husband yesterday. Mr. Castle went to the Wormwood Scrubbs prison and took his wife away. Her physical and mental condition, it is said, is such as to make her immediate sailing for America impossible, and for the present she will be taken to some quiet English country retreat.

Henry Labouchere, in Truth, devotes 11½ pages to the Castles' case, during which he says: I learn that a few magistrates favored a heavier sentence, and a few were for releasing the prisoner. Had she been released on the ground of mental infirmity, she would not have been the gainer; for she would have been sent to a criminal lunatic asylum, according to the law since 1883. The sentence seems to me light, considering the circumstances. I do not believe in Pleptomania, for if it only seems to attack the rich, and, if it really exists, I am sure that the punishment of every person stealing, while suffering therefrom, would have a very deterrent effect upon its spreading. Mrs. Castle got off cheaply when told of her imprisonment for three months, without hard labor. The effect on her health seems improbable, for I gather she has been traveling in Europe and, except for the matter of stealing, her health was the same as anybody else's. Probably the regret for what she has done, and what has come to her for doing it, will weigh on her spirits; but, this is precisely the state of mind imprisonment is intended to produce in a prisoner, and if this regret really causes her to be sick, she will be transferred to a hospital where she will become for by all connected with it.

The Castle case is remarkable for the many objects found in the Castles' trunks, stolen in Vienna. How were the custom houses passed on the journey to England? One would have thought that the officers would have been surprised to find such a large number of opera glasses and fans.

Continuing, Mr. Labouchere expresses surprise at the fact that Mr. Castle did not notice the collection of goods in their room at the Hotel Cecil, and adds: The child seems generally to have accompanied the mother when urged by her peculiar disease to go to a shop to pilfer. This child saw nothing.

The Chronicle, in commenting upon Mrs. Castle's case, does not quarrel about the release, but wishes that the British law were more even-handed, and that the same consideration were extended to the poor as to kleptomaniacs.

The Daily News says, with reference to the same subject, that it was foreseen, and, besides, "anything to oblige Mr. Bayard."

The Standard and The Graphic both fully approve of Mrs. Castle's release.

An Important Roundup.

Chicago, Nov. 11.—After systematically robbing Chicago's big department stores of plunder aggregating $15,000, during a period extending over a year, four members of a gang of shoplifters, hailing from New York, were captured yesterday afternoon. Detectives searched two flats, occupied by the self-confessed thieves, and found considerable stolen property. Those arrested are: William Scharf, Mabel Wallace, Harry Bauer and Sadie Bauer, his wife. No attempt was ever made by the shoplifters to dispose of their stolen goods in this city. Harry Bauer admits that most of the "stuff" was shipped to New York and other eastern cities, and sold for good prices to retail merchants.

How Carter Views It.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Senator Carter of Montana says that he sees no prospect of any important legislation at this session of congress. He does not believe the Dingley bill can pass, and thinks that the session will be devoted to the appropriation bills, and sparring among the political parties for position. As to tariff legislation in the next congress, Senator Carter says that he does not believe the Democrats will obstruct, no matter what the Silver Republicans may do. In his opinion, those who are claiming and believe that the hard times can be cured by silver, must allow Republican tariff legislation to be enacted, or they will meet the tariff fight in the next campaign.

Defaulting Treasurer Sentenced.

Troy, N. Y., Nov. 11.—The trial of George H. Morrison, the defaulting Rensselaer county treasurer, came to an abrupt end yesterday afternoon, when the prisoner pleaded guilty to two indictments—one charging felony, in refusing to turn over $259,000 to his successor, and the other for misappropriating $4500 of the county funds. Counsel for the accused said that they were satisfied that the people could sustain the charge. Morrison was arraigned immediately, and sentenced by Justice Parker to Dannemora prison for 10 years and five months. The sentence on the first indictment was for seven years, the remainder coming under the second.

Proctor's Good Work.

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 11.—Senator Redfield Proctor has returned from the Pacific coast, where he went, two weeks before election, at the request of Chairman Hanna. Mr. Proctor had much to do with the harmonizing of factional differences among party leaders in California and Oregon. Since Senator Proctor's return Chairman Hanna has received a letter from Chairman McLaughlin of the Republican state committee in California, complimenting the national committee on its selection of Senator Proctor as a representative to the Pacific states.

Faulkner Run Down.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 11.—James E. Faulkner, the aristocratic-looking man from Bridgeport, Conn., who filled a house with furniture and goods, obtained on pretenses to pay, and then carted them off, has been arrested. The goods were traced to a house four miles out of the city, where Faulkner was found with his wife and four children. The tradesmen got back their goods, and Faulkner was brought before the police magistrate yesterday, and remanded for a week.

Sensational Street Tragedy.

Tacoma, Nov. 11.—Samuel S. Tucker, a painter, met Dr. James Wintermute on the street yesterday, and suddenly drawing a revolver, shot Dr. Wintermute through the body. Tucker then shot himself through the head, blowing out his brains, and dying instantly. Wintermute, before he died, professed not to know the cause of the shooting.

No More Colored Folks Wanted.

Adelaide, Nov. 11.—The house of assembly yesterday passed the second reading of the government's bill to restrict the immigration of colored races.

BUSINESS MEN COMBINE.

To Organize Throughout the Country to Fight Against Silver.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—The McKinley and Hobart Business Men's national campaign committee, composed of some of the wealthiest men in Philadelphia, last night organized an association to be known as the Philadelphia Branch of the National League of Business Men. Similar organizations are to be formed in other cities. The project meets with the favor of Mr. Hanna. The object of the new leagues is explained in the following resolutions:

"To aid in the formation of similar organizations in all parts of the country, for the purpose of extending loyal and earnest support to the chief executive of the government in the arduous duties of his office; to encourage patriotic love for our country, as a united whole, and to break down and obliterate sectionalism; to maintain our national credit and integrity upon a sound money basis; to uphold law and order, and secure prosperity for our people; to promote the election of members of the national legislature, in the senate and house of representatives, who are in sympathy with this movement, and who will distinctly represent the business interests of the country; to present a strong and united front to the party of repudiation and disruption, who, in their hour of defeat, are threatening to immediately renew and persistently continue during the ensuing four years the assault upon the honor and integrity of our country; that immediate steps be taken to secure the formation and cooperation of other similar organizations, and to arrange for an early meeting of delegates from such organization of the National League of Business Men."

Good For Farmers.

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—A quiet, but steady snow is falling, and the depth ranges from two to three inches in this city, to two or three times that in Coma and southern Minnesota. The storm began in the Dakotas some days ago, and now extends nearly all over the northwest. It is seldom heavy snow falls this early in the season, and the preceding rains, with this heavy snow, causes rejoicing among the farmers, over the prospective big crops of next year, assured by the unusually moist season.

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 11.—A snowfall of 8 to 12 inches fell in this section Monday night and yesterday.

Leadville, Colo, Nov. 11.—The snowstorm, which began Monday, still continues, and the heaviest snow in years has already fallen. Trains are running on time.

For Assaulting His Child.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 11.—Judge Hardy yesterday sentenced James P. Murphy to state prison for not less than three nor more than five years. The man was found guilty of assault on his child in June last, and at that time was arrested on the charge of assault with intent to kill. On this graver charge he was acquitted, however.

It will continue sessions from time to time with the hope and expectation that a friendly and just settlement of all pending differences between the nations interested, will make a final decision on its part unnecessary."

THE PRIZE WINNER

In Mr. Brunelle of Moody Street—He Gets the Suit Offered.

During the last week of the presidential contest, the enterprising clothiers, O'Hearn & Dowd, offered as a prize to the person guessing nearest to the actual vote cast in Lowell for Wolcott and Williams for governor of Massachusetts, a suit of custom-made clothes, and a large number availed themselves of the privilege of cutting the advertisement of O'Hearn & Dowd from The Sun and sending a guess to the wide-awake firm. The following persons made very good guesses:

	Wolcott	Williams
James Listen	7852	4052
A. Rault	7248	4451
Angus McDonald	7929	4750
Bert Brunelle	7365	4321
Patrick O'Brien	7041	4822
James H. O'Brien	7185	4767
John J. Shea	7379	4713
William A. Dempsey	7075	4750

The correct vote for governor as shown on the city clerk's books is, Wolcott 7399; Williams 4346. The prize, therefore, is won by Bert Brunelle, Berwick house, Moody street, whose guess is only four votes less than the actual vote for Wolcott and twenty-five less than Williams.

There were many other guessers, some of whom guessed near the vote of either Wolcott or Williams but the above were the best guesses on the vote of both candidates.

We congratulate Mr. Brunelle on his good fortune in securing one of O'Hearn & Dowd's well made and well-fitting suits.

THE ARBITRATOR

Of the Venezuelan Trouble Decided Upon

BY ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES.

The Question is Now Practically Settled.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Lord Salisbury's declaration, at the lord mayor's banquet, that the solution of the Venezuelan boundary question had been practically accomplished by the suggestion emanating from the United States to treat the colonial empire as individuals are treated, has caused much satisfaction here. The solution of the problem which Lord Salisbury now compliments in such glowing terms was sent by Secretary Olney to Sir Julian Pauncefote, June 12 last. Up to that time Great Britain had stipulated for a tribunal of an even number of judges whose disagreement would lead to endless diplomatic controversies, which was entirely repugnant to the United States contention, and was promptly swept away, and an uneven number of jurors substituted, who might be relied upon to make a definite decision one way or another.

SECRETARY OLNEY

Real arbitration having thus been made possible, Secretary Olney then took up Lord Salisbury's proviso by which the boundary line, as drawn by an arbitrary tribunal, was not to include territory bona fide occupied by British subjects or Venezuelan citizens on Jan. 1, 1887. He insisted that this should be stricken out altogether, thereby making the arbitration unconditional, or that there might be substituted the following:

"Provided, however, that in fixing such line, if territory of one party be found in the occupation of the subjects or citizens of the other party, such weight and effect shall be given to such occupation as reason, justice, the rules of international law and the equities of the particular case may appear to require."

This was at the time declared to be the radical solution of the dispute, and after first ascertaining, through publication, the temper of those directly concerned regarding the suggestion, subsequent negotiations, it is now known, have been confined to elaborating the point until no doubt could possibly arise before the joint tribunal as to its intention and limitations. It is learned that Venezuela has fully consented to this arrangement, and that her officials are confident of their ability to refute every British claim to settled districts previous to 1877 in any territory west of the Pomaroon river, in which event the line of division would lie almost identical with that claimed before the Venezuelan commission in the Storrow brief.

Frederick R. Coudert, a member of the commission, said yesterday that it would be much better for the boundary to be determined by arbitration than by a decision of the commission. The report of the commission, however, if it should be made, would be of much value in determining the matter in dispute. Mr. Coudert, when asked concerning the subject of the statutes of limitation referred to in Lord Salisbury's address, said that the statement was not sufficiently definite to enable one to say what length of time would be fixed as giving a good title. He was of the opinion that the circumstances of individual cases will be taken into consideration. Mr. Coudert expressed the opinion that moral, as well as legal claims, would be recognized in any arbitration. When asked if the commission had been apprised beforehand concerning the announcement that would be made in the Guildhall speech, Mr. Coudert said that he had no prior information that Lord Salisbury was to make the announcement of the nearest approach to settlement of the question.

The King of Sweden and Norway, Oscar II, has been chosen, by the treaty between the United States and Great Britain, as the final arbitrator of the Venezuelan boundary question. The other arbitrators, four in number, are to be designated, two by the lord chief justice of England, and two by the chief justice of the United States.

This is the final and the most important feature of the treaty for the complete adjustment of the long-pending Venezuelan controversy. The treaty was concluded in Washington Monday night, at the British embassy, Sir Julian Pauncefote representing her Britannic majesty, and Secretary Olney, the United States.

The other essential feature of the treaty is that 50 years actual possession is to constitute title. With this limitation as to the settled districts, the entire sweep of Venezuela boundary is placed in the hands of the court of arbitration. The treaty covers only Venezuela, and the question of general arbitration between the United States and Great Britain is left to future negotiations. As a king seldom leaves his country, except on state visits to other sovereigns, it is not expected that King Oscar II will get outside of Sweden for the meeting of the arbitrators, and the court is likely to set at Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, where King Oscar's palace and the halls of the Sweden rekstag are located.

LOWELL MAN HELD

For Shooting a Man at Providence, R. I. Yesterday.

Providence, Nov. 11.—Joseph H. Kender was accidentally shot yesterday at a rifle range, and is in a very critical condition, the ball having severed a blood-vessel, causing internal hemorrhage. Arthur Denares of Lowell, Mass., admits that he was one of the two men shooting at the range, but claims that the rifle was discharged by Paul Bowden, a Providence marketman. Both Kender and the only other witness, a boy named Chester Thatcher, state that the shooting was accidental.

Monsoon Would Be Welcomed.

Madras, India, Nov. 11.—Anxiety is felt here at the absence of the northeast monsoon. The affected area is at present restricted to the ceded districts, where tentative relief works have been started. Should the monsoon fail completely, and the districts around Madras become dependent upon tank irrigation, it does not follow that they will suffer severely from the failure of the crops, because there are good harvests in the southern districts of Malabar and Kanara. This circumstance is fortunate, because Bengal and Burmah will be unable to supply enormous quantities of rice, as they did in 1877.

Both Instantly Killed.

Reading, Pa., Nov. 11.—A train on the Pennsylvania railroad ran into a carriage containing a man and woman, at the Gibraltar grade crossing, yesterday. Both were instantly killed. The man was Charles F. Bright, aged 39, a wealthy citizen of Reading. On his person were found $10,000 worth of bonds. The woman was identified as Catherine Boyer, a 19-year-old working girl, unmarried. Bright had taken her for a drive, unknown to her friends, who were under the impression that she had gone to her regular employment.

Railway Smashup at Haverhill.

Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 11.—A through freight from Boston to Portland broke apart near the Winter street crossing this morning. The break was about two cars back of the engine, and the rear section crashed into the forward section with such force as to derail eight cars. Brakeman Miller was sent to the hospital, badly hurt. Conductor Olney was able to resume work. The cars were heavily loaded, but the train was running at a slow rate of speed. The damage to rolling stock is about $8000.

Manslaughter Charged.

Boston, Nov. 11.—The trial of George Jackson, colored, for alleged manslaughter, in causing the death of Frank Bell, colored, who was fatally shot on Sept. 21, was begun here yesterday. Bell was shot through the left hand and breast, and died at the city hospital on Sept. 29. A medical examiner found that death was caused by a bullet wound in the left lung and spine.

Three Receivers Appointed.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The comptroller of the currency has appointed receivers of national banks as follows: Yates County National bank of Penn Yan, N. Y., Simon Kinne; First National bank of Garrett, Kan., R. E. Spangler; First National bank of Eddy, N. M., Isaac W. Rogers; Second National bank of Rockford, Ills., H. H. Waldo.

A Sign of the Times.

Fort Wayne, Nov. 11.—John H. Bass, proprietor of the largest car wheel works in the country, announces that he has received, since election, over $500,000 worth of orders at the works here, and the branches in Chicago and St. Louis. All the factories will be run full time.

NASHUA LAWYER

Missing and May Have Become Insane—Had Been Disbarred.

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 11.—George Y. Sawyer, Jr., 55 years of age, formerly a leading lawyer in Hillsboro county, is missing. Last Wednesday he packed his grip and told his wife that he would eat his Thanksgiving dinner in the City of Mexico. He went out, and from that time has not been heard from. About 15 years ago Sawyer was disbarred for contempt of court, and for the last few years he has been brooding considerably over his blighted career, and it is thought his mind became unsettled.

Stock Company Goes Under.

Boston, Nov. 11.—The Bay State Stock company has assigned to William A. Morse. The office was closed yesterday by keepers being placed therein. B. A. Atkinson is said to be the head of the company, which has been doing a stock brokerage business. The liabilities and assets are both small.

Junior Vice Commander J. Adams Bartlett and twenty of his comrades went to Haverhill last night and inspected Post 47 of that city.

As a Result of Burns Received While Playing With Matches.

Thomas Ingalsby, the little child who was burned while playing with matches yesterday morning at his home 3 Chapel street, died last night at St. John's hospital.

SOME CRISP GOSSIP.

To the stranger coming Lowellward along Andover street, the ruins of the Faulkner residence on Belmont street stand sionlhetted against the sky like the ruins of the castle of medieval ages. All that is lacking to make the ruins appear like a crumbling remnant of feudal times is the creeping vine, the ivy which clings to those old walls adding to their weird beauty. The ruins of the Faulkner building stand today untouched since the fire, though lovers of beautiful architecture express the hope that ere long the work of rebuilding will begin. The Faulkner and Bonney mansions are among the "sights" always shown the visitors from out of town.

On a recent hunting trip John Donohoe bagged thirty rabbits, a brace of partridges, two gray squirrels and half a dozen snipe. Last evening these were served in the form of a delicious soup under the supervision of the cook of Faugh A. Ballaugh.

WHAT IT IS

What is it? A Sure Cure. That's What.

A year of it.
A year of what?
Pain and misery combined—misery mostly.
Each month worse than the one before.
Not always as bad one day as another.
But that OTHER always made up.
Terribly discouraged many times.
Wondered what would come of it all.
Pains in my back simply terrible.
Kidneys sore as a boil.
Worse in the morning after] a night's REST.
REST—I didn't know what it was.
So stiff and lame mornings could hardly get up.
And the pain was there.
And it stayed there.
That is kidney disease.
That is what it IS.
Now the other side.
What is it? A sure cure.
It is just that for everybody.
What is it called?
Doan's Kidney Pills.
Will they cure some one else, but not me?
They will cure you, and them and everybody.
Who says so—the maker of the Pills?
Yes—but your neighbors say so, too.
Needn't go to 'Frisco to those cured there.
Perhaps only around the corner.
Mrs. Mary Gard of No. 4 Noble's Court is the subject of all the above and you can call on her. She suffered a great deal and can tell you of Doan's Kidney Pills—they cured her.

A GRAND WEDDING

Marriage of Mayor Courtney and Miss Brouillette.

IN ST. JEAN BAPTISTE CHURCH TONIGHT.

Six Bridesmaids Will Attend the Bride.

One of the greatest weddings that ever occurred in Lowell will take place tonight.

Shortly after six o'clock in the presence of several thousand friends, Mayor William F. Courtney and Miss Alice A. Brouillette will be united in matrimony at the beautiful St. Jean Baptiste church, on Merrimack street. With fair weather the streets in the vicinity will undoubtedly be crowded with people anxious to get a glimpse of the mayor and his fair young bride as they march from the grand edifice. Rev. Fr. Guillard, O. M. I., will perform the ceremony.

A temporary altar has been constructed and chairs have been placed in the large auditorium. The guests will be escorted to seats by 15 ushers, who will also act as escort to the bridal party. Miss Brouillette will have six bridesmaids, besides maid of honor. The costumes worn by the ladies will be rich and of beautiful design. After the church ceremony, which will probably be somewhat prolonged, the guests will be driven to the home of the bride's parents, 1096 Middlesex street, where the reception will be held.

It is said that every carriage in Lowell has been engaged and it will be necessary to charter special cars to carry the large number of people from the church to the house.

The invited guests include many prominent out-of-town people. The Redberry club of Boston, of which Mayor Courtney is a member, and which includes in its ranks Congressman Fitzgerald, City Messenger Leary, Senator Sullivan, ex-Senator Kennedy, Thomas Scruggs of the Boston school board, and many other prominent Bostonians will come up on the 5 o'clock train this afternoon. There will be thirty of them, and after the reception they will be entertained by the Big 12 club.

Many mayors in this state and New Hampshire have been invited and some will attend.

Several hundred letters of congratulation have poured in upon the bride-to-be, and each one conveys the good wishes for happiness, prosperity and joy. Some contain cute quotations from authors, one writer has had recourse to the bible and several have written the prettiest original poems imaginable.

The wedding presents will form the grandest and undoubtedly the costliest display ever seen in this city. Every branch of the city government has recognized the important event by handsome gifts. License Commissioner Brady will give the best individual present the Mayor and Mrs. Courtney will receive. It is a very costly piece of furniture. The French merchants of the city will present the young couple with a gift as valuable as any they will receive. Yesterday afternoon Rabbi Wolfson, Pres. Reubin and Sec. Julian of the Hebrew Independent association, called at the Mayor's law office and requested his presence for a few minutes. When the Mayor appeared, Pres. Reubin in a neat speech presented him with a beautiful solid silver ice pitcher, with silver mugs. The pitcher was engraved, "Presented to Mayor William F. Courtney by the Lowell Hebrew association." The Mayor expressed his appreciation of the gift and requested the committee to convey his sincere thanks to the members of the association.

The bridal couple will leave the house at 9 o'clock and take a carriage for the Northern depot where they will take the 9.25 train for Boston.

In Boston they will board the midnight train for New York, and the trip will also include a trip to Philadelphia and Washington. They will be gone two weeks and on their return will reside at 69 Third street. They will be "at home" Wednesdays in January.

THEATRICAL NEWS.

Music Hall.

Harry Montague's comedians delighted another large audience at this house last evening in the rollicking farce comedy, "My Uncle From New York." The final presentation of this side-splitting absurdity will be given this afternoon and evening, and if you enjoy good, clean humor interspersed with catchy music, avail yourselves of these last opportunities. Tomorrow evening, Edward Hanford and his company open a three night's engagement at this house.

Savoy Theatre.

Another large audience attended the Savoy theatre last evening and enjoyed to the utmost that sterling comedy, "Our Boys," so finely produced by Mr. Weston's admirable company.

Miss Rose Stahl is indeed a finished actress and is fast gaining undisputed popularity among Lowell's critical theatre goers. "Our Boys" will continue to be the attraction for the remainder of the week, and next week Olnet's grand play, "The Ironmaster," will be produced.

MATRIMONIAL.

A fashionable wedding occurred in the Grace church last evening the contracting parties being Miss Mary, daughter of William D. Earle and Frederick A. Wood of Buffalo, N. Y., a member of the Buffalo Express staff. The handsome edifice was beautifully decorated and was filled with relatives and friends of the happy couple. the ceremony was performed at 6 o'clock by Rev. R. A. Greene, Mrs. James B. Field presiding at the organ.

The bridesmaids were Misses Elizabeth Taylor and Edith Swan of Cambridge and Louise Reader and Helen Lambert of Lowell. Mr. Fred N. Wier was best man and the ushers were Messrs. Will Earle, Col. Fred T. Walsh, H. Kirk White and John Lambert.

The bride was attired in a handsome and becoming costume of ivory satin and carried lilies of the valley, and the bridesmaids wore white organdie and carried garlands of laurel.

After the ceremony a reception was held at the residence of the bride's father on Pawtucket street. The home was tastefully decorated with chrysanthemums. A collation was served by the Page Co. and the American orchestra discoursed sweet music. Mr. and Mrs. Wood departed on their honeymoon at 9 o'clock and will take up their residence at Buffalo.

Emmott—Flanagan.

Walter H. Emmott and Miss Maud Flanagan were united in marriage last evening by Rev. Mr. Manchester of St. John's church at 71 Westford street. The bride was attended by Miss May Flanagan while Leonard J. Jewett was best man. The ushers were Messrs. Herbert L. Bishop and Samuel Davis. The interior of the house was beautifully decorated and the wedding gifts were numerous and costly. Mr. and Mrs. Emmott will reside at 71 Westford street.

Jaquith-Macauley.

The marriage of Herbert S. Jaquith of Lynn, formerly of this city, and Miss Nellie Macauley occurred last evening at 7 o'clock at the home of the bride, 166 Third street, Rev. C. E. Fisher of the First Universalist church officiating. Caroline F. Richardson was bridesmaid and Howard C. Rand best man.

Mr. and Mrs. Jaquith will reside in Lynn.

Boorstein-Goldman.

A very pretty wedding in Jewish faith occurred last evening in the cosy little synagogue on Worthen street, the happy couple being Miss Annie Goldman, a handsome and estimable daughter of the local Hebrew colony, and Mr. Jacob Boorstein, the well known Little Canada merchant. The ceremony was performed by Rabbi Wolfson in the presence of the relatives and friends of the happy couple. Messrs. Moyer Cohen and Harry M. Boorstein were the best men, and the bride's attendants were Miss Jennie Goldman, a sister of the bride, and Miss Rosa Boorstein of New York. The bride was handsomely attired in pure white brocade silk with a long train and the bridesmaids were similarly attired except that they wore shorter trains.

After the ceremony the guests repaired to Mechanics hall where a lunch was served after which a reception was held followed by dancing to the music of Pease's orchestra and a banquet.

Onion Club Supper.

The Onion club held one of its famous suppers last evening at its apartments on Merrimack street. The feast consisted of a rabbit supper prepared by the club's chef, Con. Collins, and the rabbits were shot by Bob. Saunders, John Courtney and Harry Young.

About two dozen members sat down to the well laden tables and enjoyed unrestrictedly the fruits of Chef Collins' artistic work.

Marriage Intentions.

The following intentions were recorded at the city clerk's office today:

John Ennis 24, to Katie Fitzgerald 22.
John M. Hamilton 22, Manchester, to Ella L. Richards 22, Manchester.
John Wesson 23, to Mary L. Riley 23.

FUNERAL SERVICE.

GROOM—St. Peter's church was crowded this morning when the last sad service was offered up over the remains of the late Thomas J. Groom. His former associates were present in large numbers, and many of those who were accustomed to his daily call while delivering the mails occupied seats in the church. At 9 o'clock Rev. Fr. McKenna celebrated celebrated a high mass of requiem. The choir directed by T. F. Molloy sang Schmidt's requiem mass.

After the service the long funeral cortege proceeded to the Catholic cemetery where the interment took place. Rev. Fr. McKenna officiated at the grave. The pall bearers were Messrs. He Spent Many Years in the Service of the J. C. Ayer Company—Died Suddenly.

Benjamin Walker, one of Lowell's oldest and most prominent residents, died quite suddenly this morning at his home, 100 Appleton street, at the ripe old age of 74 years.

Deceased was a native of Wilmington, Mass., and came to this city at the age of four years. After receiving an education in the schools of this city, he entered the employ of the J. C. Ayer Co., where he labored continuously all through life until last Monday when he was taken ill. He was one of the oldest and most respected employes of the laboratory.

Though prominent among his fellows and trusted and respected by all, Mr. Walker was a modest retiring person belonging to few societies or clubs with the exception of the Old Residents' association of which he was president. He was also treasurer of the Lowell and Andover railroad.

He is survived by a widow and one daughter. The funeral will occur Saturday.

People's Club.

The monthly meeting of the board of government last night received reports of the remarkable attendance noted this season. During October there were 4380 visitors to the men's branch reading room, a nightly average of 161. The number of books taken out was 486. The largest attendance was on Oct. 8, when there were 286 visitors. In the amusement room the total attendance was 3033, an average of 112. Last night every seat in both rooms was occupied. The women's branch was open three weeks in October, with an average attendance of 12, 21 and 26 in the respective weeks. The classes are so large that another room may be necessary for their accommodation.

The annual report of Treasurer J. G. Marshal showed a flourishing condition of the finances. The receipts were $2669.41. The expenses including $325 carried to the permanent fund, were $2418.55, leaving a balance or $250.86 for the new account.

Proctor's Good Work.

Montpelier, Vt., Nov. 11.—Senator Redfield Proctor has returned from the Pacific coast, where he went, two weeks before election, at the request of Chairman Hanna. Mr. Proctor had much to do with the harmonizing of factional differences among party leaders in California and Oregon. Since Senator Proctor's return Chairman Hanna has received a letter from Chairman McLaughlin of the Republican state committee in California, complimenting the national committee on its selection of Senator Proctor as a representative to the Pacific states.

Faulkner Run Down.

Windsor, Ont., Nov. 11.—James E. Faulkner, the aristocratic-looking man from Bridgeport, Conn., who filled a house with furniture and goods, obtained on pretenses to pay, and then carted them off, has been arrested. The goods were traced to a house four miles out of the city, where Faulkner was found with his wife and four children. The tradesmen got back their goods, and Faulkner was brought before the police magistrate yesterday, and remanded for a week.

CITY COUNCIL.

Both Branches Held Meetings—Business Transacted.

The aldermen in special session sat down to a long and tedious job last evening when they began the recount in Wards 1, 5 and 6.

There were present at the meeting all the members except Mayor Courtney and Alderman Crowley.

There appeared to be but little interest taken in the matter for at the opening only Fisher H. Pearson, Matthew W. Mansfield, Major Rowell, J. A. Pattee, and Charles Dam were present.

City Clerk Dadman and Assistant Clerk McCarthy arranged the details incidental to the count and informed the city fathers that they should count the presidential electors and the candidates for congress and the legislature.

The counting began at 8 o'clock after Alderman Tryder had called to order and the counters sat around a large table in the center of the room. The counting progressed slowly.

COMMON COUNCIL.

The council came to order at 8.20 with 20 members present, and several petitions were referred to their proper committees in concurrence.

The communication from the city engineer certifying that McKinley and other avenues had been laid out as ordered and the resolution to lay out and accept these avenues, as in accordance with the new rule, had their final reading and were adopted.

The joint resolution to straighten Rogers street at the junction of Haines avenue was passed, and the resolution to expend money on the rifle range also.

A recess of 10 minutes was then taken to the ante-room.

The Manchester city council bowling game matter came up at the conclusion of the recess, and Councilmen Dunn, Hartwell and Eastman were appointed a committee to make preparations for the event.

Councilman Eveleth then reported progress on the matter of a bridge in Lundberg street over the Boston and Maine tracks.

Adjourned at 9.05 on motion of Councilman Miskella.

During the recess the council appointed Councilmen Dickson, Eveleth and Reynolds a committee to procure a suitable wedding gift for Mayor Courtney and all the members will attend.

COMMUNICATION.

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir:—In reply to Mr. Rafferty's communication in defense of Mr. Connelly I may say that that gentleman is but a "me too" to Connelly. He was favored with a seat on the platform at republican rallies at which Connelly spoke and he has no opinions on any question except what he obtains from Connelly. His mind has a canine turn as he represents your correspondent as a cur dog barking at a mastiff. In this case he is the "cur" that barks for the mastiff and he barks very indiscreetly. He asserts that all of my statements regarding Mr. Connelly "have no foundation."

I suppose the fact that I personally heard Mr. Connelly say he would be one of a party to go to Washington and kill the rulers would cause Mr. Rafferty to come out and say he could find hundreds including "curs" and "mastiffs" who did not hear him make any such statement. Now it is well known that Mr. Connelly was a candidate for democratic offices and failed to be recognized. Then he entered the ranks of the populists and soon ran for senator. Failing to be elected there but succeeding in defeating Peter J. Brady he was satisfied. There are many who hold the opinion to this day that Mr. Connelly, Mr. Rafferty and a few more were in collusion with the republican candidate when they put their populistic ticket in the field. The populists are for free silver, but how soon did Connelly drop his populism to enter the republican party, and how soon did Mr. Rafferty follow him! Mr. Connelly, I believe, was once honest in his efforts for labor organizations, but since he began to itch for public office he has considered only himself. If he could succeed, he would probably be another Senator Heward, who shouts for labor and at the same time lays in with the corporations. In other words, he works both sides and that is just what Connelly has started out to do and nothing Mr. Rafferty can say will change the facts. Truly Yours, LABOR.

POLITICAL FIELD

Correspondents Give Their Views on Mayoralty.

A WORD ABOUT THE GENUS CUCKOO.

Miller as the Leading Republican Candidate.

☞ ANY MAN pretending to be a democrat who, in public print or otherwise, opposes the election of a regular democratic nominee, or who repeatedly votes in the city council for republican candidates as against competent and worthy democrats, is a POLITICAL TRAITOR of the kind known in politics as A CUCKOO. No such man has any claim upon the democratic party for a nomination or election to any office.

The friends of the various candidates for the mayoralty are working hard and the contest promises to be quite exciting. Public rallies are to be inaugurated by Mayor Courtney which is an unusual course. It is not likely that Mr. Pearson will adopt this course as he believes that the voters are sufficiently posted upon the services of each to the city and the party.

It is said that Aldermen Dow and Tucke can have a renomination if they desire it.

Tomorrow night, friends of John C. Wilson will hold a rally in Good Templars hall on Gorham street.

The Young Men's republican club will probably hold a rally in Huntington hall after the mayoralty and aldermanic candidates are nominated.

P. J. Canty who represented old Ward 5 as a democratic councilman, may be found in next year's city council as a republican from Ward 7.

Charles Kimball of ward six, Mr. Fletcher of ward nine and Henry Williams of ward eight are candidates for renomination to the board of overseers of the poor.

Tomorrow night the friends of Mayor Courtney intend to have a monster meeting in Jackson hall to boom the mayor's candidacy. There will be speeches to show why Mayor Courtney should be the party's candidate, and his friends intend to make it a big gathering.

It is said that this year's board of aldermen may be asked to determine the salary of the purchasing agent to be chosen at the municipal election. This is considered only fair and just, because then it cannot be said that the aldermen are influenced one way or the other, because the official may be a democrat or a republican.

Of the democratic councilmen seven will seek renomination. Councilman John E. Sullivan is now located in Ward 9, a republican ward, and Councilman Maguire has served two terms. Those who want a renomination, which means re-election, are Councilmen Pendergast and Dunn, Ward 2; Miskella, Reynolds and Stephen O'Hare, Ward 4; Thornton John P. O'Hare, Ward 5.

Ex-Councilman Ryan was read out of the democratic party in this city for voting in favor of Davis for chief of police. Ryan had been guilty of the crime of cuckooism but once, and he received the full penalty of the political law. Had he committed the same offence about forty times and acquired a little bank account, he might today be in good standing in the party running as a candidate for mayor.

What inducement is there for a young man entering the democratic party to keep straight, if he sees the biggest traitors receiving the greatest honors at the hands of the party? He soon makes up his mind that he must do one of two things to receive recognition. He must either betray his party and truckle for the favor of opposition, or go into the republican party where they reward only the faithful and punish the cuckoos. Have the local democrats learned this lesson yet? Will they nominate renegades and cuckoos, or will they nominate straight democrats as a reward for faithful service and as an example to those who look for preferments.

Mr. Editor:—Would you kindly insert the following in your valuable paper: To my friends and fellow democrats who have so generously pushed forward my name for councilmanic honors in Ward 2, I desire to thank and also to express my feeling of regret, that owing to the work it involves at present and the after work if elected, I feel that I could not give the time that the office requires. Therefore, I believe that a man should not be a candidate for public office or public trust unless he can give his individual attention toward the development of good government and the promotion of the interests of his constituency. That time I have not at my disposal as I previously stated, consequently my declining to be a candidate for the councilmanic nomination.

Thanking the voters of Ward 2 again for the marked manifestations of their continued confidence. Signed,

Nov. 10, '96. T. H. MULDOON.

Editor Sun:

"Joe Miller wants to pose as a dictator," said a prominent republican to me while talking over the situation and upon hearing my request for an explanation said: "Miller controls 250 British American votes on which he can bank and he'll go to the convention with a certain number of delegates. When he sees how the fight is going and that he has no show himself he will throw his strength to the strongest candidate and throwing out his chest will say: "I dictated who should be nominated."

"Are you going to vote for Miller?" asked the writer. "Not much, I want a straight republican or I don't vote." "Well, how about John Wilson?" "He's got the A. P. A. vote. I told you I want a straight republican or I cast a blank ballot.

And so Miller has the British-Americans and Wilson has the A. P. A.'s. I wonder who has the "Scotch-Irish" that we hear so much about and where they are to be found or do they segregate from the other factions? POLITICIAN.

Loyal Democracy.

Editor of the Sun:

Sir:—The national and state election having gone by with all its turmoil and excitement it behooves us now as the party of the new democracy, to take a survey of the situation and prepare for the municipal fight which is now close at hand, and in doing so it would be well to turn on the light and examine carefully the timber or material we will make use of in filling the different offices in our city government. The democracy in this city as well as elsewhere have had an uphill and enough experience in their late fight. The leaders were not in command. Neither did they contribute any of the sinews of war, nor did they even lend their sympathy in the struggle. Some of them were against us in the lines of the enemy, others were lukewarm blowing neither hot nor cold, resting on their arms whilst the rank and file stood the heat and brunt of the battle, falling behind the breastwork like good soldiers. Therefore, before entering on another campaign it is but natural that we should take a retrospect of the position, calling the backsliders to account and pass judgment upon their behavior in considering whether we shall further accept them as candidates for positions of honor in our local affairs. We presume that the people we refer to are now willing to be recognized as members of our household as belonging to the Bryan democracy, when they have axes of their own to grind. Some having already begun to pull wires to get their names on the tickets, putting us under the chin to gain our favor and support.

Democratic voters pay no attention to their guff, recognize them not, even if we have to suffer this time the loss of the offices. They lent their assistance to bring about defeat on the state and national tickets.

Republicans were more to their liking than the nominees of our party—the regular democracy. Let us now retaliate like men by rejecting their services and have no further use for them until they have conformed with the conditions pronounced upon such by our defeated leader, viz: that they be requested to devote a reasonable time in the wood yard with the respectable occupation of "sawing wood." If the republicans were more satisfactory and good enough for them in the greater and more important affairs of the nation, we may also entrust them in the affairs of the city, if the course I suggest would cause our defeat.

Attend the caucus. Select your men out of the 4500 of the faithful and we will use our endeavors to elect them, and if so it will be a lesson to the goldpluraem and timeservers that they will not soon or readily forget.

H. HAMER.

Editor Sun:

Dear Sir:—Permit me to say a few words in your valuable paper for the benefit of the voters of ward five (5). We have many names of good men desiring the honors of a member of the common council. One of them is Geo. A. Farley who is well known by all voters of the city to be a man among men. He is fair in his action to all. Being a life long resident of the city he certainly has the best interest of not only ward 5 but the city of Lowell at heart. As a friend of the laboring class and as a citizen he has done all in his power to advance their cause and if the voters of ward 5 choose a man that knows the wants of ward 5 and the city of Lowell he will do all in his power to help advance the city of Lowell as well as protecting the interest of all citizens. Let the voters of ward 5 turn out at the democratic caucus Thursday, Nov. 19 and vote for Geo. A. Farley of ward 5. A VOTER.

Dr. Martin of ward six, Willard Everett of ward eight, Dr. Thomas of ward three and Hugh Farley of ward five will be candidates for renomination to the school board.

☞ ANY MAN pretending to be a democrat who, in public print or otherwise, opposes the election of a regular democratic nominee, or who repeatedly votes in the city council for republican candidates as against competent and worthy democrats, is a POLITICAL TRAITOR of the kind known in politics as A CUCKOO. No such man has any claim upon the democratic party for a nomination or election to any office.

It is not expected that the silver issue will enter into the municipal campaign to any great extent.

A democratic cuckoo who betrays his party once will do it again. The cuckoo is always the same old bird. Look out for him.

There is a great effort being made in Boston to count out Councillor Allen, the "culled gentleman" in favor of Sullivan, who held the position last year.

The local Sunday paper, which it is alleged is run by Mr. Knox and some of his backers, should print the Goodwin murder story and the switchboard theft for the edification of its readers.

George H. Marston is usurping Joe Miller's title as the business man's candidate for mayor. Alderman Tryder and Col. Bennett are also in the race but they will all get left as a democrat will be elected.

The local parties are expected to nominate their respective candidates for purchasing agent in their mayoralty conventions. The office seems to be considered as important as the mayoralty and more important than that of license commissioner.

Why bestow the honors of a democratic nomination upon traitors when good, straight, honest democrats are asking for it. Is there no reward for party fealty in the local democracy? Must a man be a cuckoo to get recognition from the democrats of Lowell?

The people have long since given up hope of anything like a patriotic foreign policy by this administration.—Mail.

When the present administration came out boldly for the Monroe Doctrine, the Mail joined the list of pro-British papers that deprecated any rupture with England. The same whoodling organ condemns the government for enforcing the law against the Cuban filibusterers when the alternative is war with Spain. If anybody else encouraged law breaking the Mail would call it anarchy. Such is the consistency that reigns in the Mail office.

THE FINANCIERS HAVE CONFIDENCE.

The influx of gold to the United States treasury proves the truth of Mr. Bryan's claim that the gold of the country can be cornered by a cotetie of financiers. That it comes in now is but a proof that it may go out as quickly just as the syndicates which are backing Hanna see fit. They can fill the treasury or deplete it at will and thus cause a fictitious appearance of prosperity or a panic. This is but another proof that the basis of our circulating medium is too small. Under a bimetallic basis the speculators would be unable to control the treasury as they do at present and they could not, therefore, cause a financial panic whenever it may be to their advantage to do so. We are told that this influx of gold indicates confidence. The financiers are confident as they have a right to be, because they are in full charge of the government.

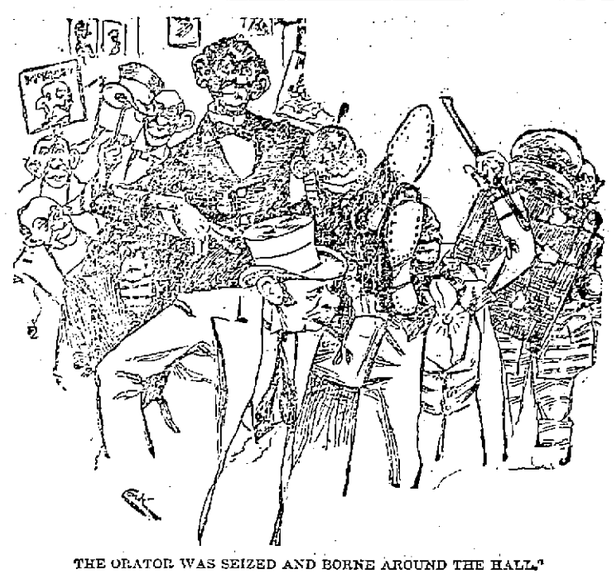
THE MAYORALTY.

The republicans are at sea on the mayoralty question. Miller is the leader and close behind come Wilson, Marston, Tryder, Bennett, Lawton and Hutchinson. Upon none of these candidates has the republican sentiment centred, so that it is safe to say none of them would be elected if nominated.

Should the friends of Mr. Hutchinson urge his candidacy, the Millerites would raise a howl and set out to defeat him. The republican city committee is in the hands of Miller's friends who can force his nomination in the face of all opposition.

Many republicans threaten to bolt, but they will probably turn and vote for the democratic candidate as they have done for the past two years. The opposition to Miller propose a popular method of nomination, such as was tried in Lawrence last year. It provides for caucuses from 2 to 10 p. m. and that the candidate who receives the largest number of votes be nominated. That plan worked well in Lawrence and it would be interesting to see it tried here. It is certain that if such a method of nominating were adopted here, Mr. Miller would find himself out of the fight.

On the democratic side the fight rests between Hon. Fisher H. Pearson and the present incumbent, William F. Courtney. The people alone can decide this contest and it is right that it should be placed fairly before them. It is important that no ill feeling be engendered to operate against the election of the nominee.



THE ORATOR WAS SEIZED AND BORNE AROUND THE HALL."

THE CAMPAIGN CLUB

HON. HENSHAW PRIOE DISCRIBES M'KINLEY AS A BOY.

Effect of the Tariff on Bear's Oil and Coon Skins as Orator Price Sees It—An Abjuration to Say Nothing, but Saw Wood For a Time.

When the club had been called to order at its regular Saturday night meeting, Brother Gardner announced that the Hon. Henshaw Price, better known as "the Kentucky Spring Chicken," had arrived in town and would speak before the club. He hoped the speaker would receive a cordial welcome, and yet he advised that no one lend him any money or encourage him to think he could find a job if he hung around. Samuel Shin, who has the whooping cough at the age of 42, was warned that he must stop coughing or leave the hall, and Shindig Watkins was given to understand that if he got too excited and broke a lamp he would be liable to a fine which would keep him struggling for the next hundred years.

Mr. Henshaw proved to be a man past the middle age, black as the ace of spades, and his heels and ears were the most prominent parts of his anatomy. He had evidently covered a good many miles of highway and slept under a good many haystacks, but as soon as he reached the platform he sort of shook himself together and made a favorable impression.

"My fren's," began the orator in a voice as ripe as a November pumpkin, "I am gwine to spoke to yo' tonight about de Republican candydate. I could begin an tell yo' 'bout de garden of Eden an consume yo'teeth days of yo'r waluable time gittin down to do present date, but I shall plunge at once into my subjick. A great party has nominated a sartin man fur de presidency. He may git dar, an he may not, but de people want to know 'bout him jist de same. I has known Billy McKinley since he was bo'n. Fur de fust ten y'ars of his life my wife was de lady who washed fur his mudder, an I was the gem'lan who worked in his fadder's garden. [Applause.] I watched dat boy wid keerful eye to see what dere was in him, an I was disapp'inted. He wasn't 6 y'ars ole when he frowed a stone an killed my dawg. [Groans.] A y'ar later he sneaked into my truck patch one day an kicked de stuffin outer 50 big squashes an fo' hundred cowcumbers, an den laid it off on an nodder boy. [Shouts of "Shame! Shame!"].

"Let any cull'd man in dis kintry go to Mistah McKinley's house tomorrer an ax him if he wanted a stove blacked or a ceilin whitewashed, an he would yell in reply, 'Now, yo' coon, yo' skate outer dis, or I'll burn yo'r heels.' [Shouts of indignation from all over the hall.] If yo' wanted fo'teen dollars an went to Mistah McKinley to borrow it, how would he meet yo'? Would he smile an shake hands an pull out de money same as George Washington or Patrick Henry or Henry Clay an tell yo' to come back if yo' wanted 20 mo'? No, sah, not much! He would gin yo' one awful look outer his left eye, an den cotch yo' by de frout an frow yo' sky high an laugh an chuckle as yo'r remains struck de airth. [Wild yells of rage and horror.]

"Of co'se yo' hev all heard about de McKinley tariff," continued the speaker, who was now thoroughly warmed up. "Folks call him a great man kase he got up a tariff dat helped pore folks. I know all 'bout dat tariff. I met him in de road one day, an as he happened to be good natured he axed me fur a chaw of terbacker an said he was gittin up a tariff dat would save de cull'd people of dis kentry millyuns of dollars a y'ar. Has it dun so? ["No! No!"] Not by a jug full! While dat tariff 'pears to be all right in theory, how am it in practice? Fur instance, I use a bottle of b'arlic on my ha'r obery week. Befo' dat tariff took place de price was two shillin's a bottle. Sense dat tariff it am twenty-eight cents an jumpin along like prairie fire. Three y'ars ago a 'possum pelt or coon skin was worth fo'ty cents. De price today am only thirty, an de buyer wants yo' to take it out in soap at dat! [Groans and catcalls.] If I want some ahum to hold in my mouf, I find dat de price has doubled. Three y'ars ago a man in Louisville offered me a diamond pin fur two dollars an a half. De odder day he axed me 'loben dollars fur dat same sparkler. [Groans.] Dat's how de tariff has helped de pore folks of dis kentry.

"Men ob dis campaign club," said the orator as he drew himself up and struck an attitude, "doan' be in a hurry to pledge yo'rselves to any perticker candydate. Doan' go around sayin yo' ar' a Republican, a Dimocrat, a Silverite or a Populist. Yo' jist kep still till de cat cums to de cand of de fence an den watch her jump. What we want as a race am a president dat will give us $100 bicycles fur $30. We want N. O. molasses fur fifteen cents a gallon. We want 'taters fur ten cents a bushel, an codfish so cheap dat de grocer will pay yo' to take it away. We want wages to go up an house rent to come down, an if any of yo' has an old mewl to sell yo' want to know dat we hev a government which will buy him fur $50 spot cash. Wait! Watch! Say nuffin, but saw wood."

At the close of his address the orator was seized by the enthusiastic audience and borne around the hall in triumph, and it was not until six policemen had made their way up stairs that order was restored and the meeting adjourned. M. QUAD.

TWO SONS OF GRIEF.

Losing Their Wives Was Hard, but They Were Getting Reconciled.

The one was a man about 60 years old, with a satchel on his knees. The other was a man of about the same age, with a satchel between his feet. They sat opposite each other in the street car, and each had a mourning band on his hat. By and by they happened to look at each other, and a fellow feeling welled up in their hearts at once.

"I take it," said No. 1 as he leaned across the aisle, "that your beloved wife has departed from this cold world."

"She has," was the reply. "You also seem to have suffered the same sorrow."

"Jest the same. Yes, my wife has been laid away to rest. Is comes hard, don't it?"

"Powerful hard. Did you feel as if you wanted to go too?"

"I did. I purty nigh committed suicide."

"So did I. Did you git over that feelin after about three months?"

"Wal, sorter."

"Same with me. You fust thought you'd buy a $100 gravestun, didn't you?"

"That was exactly my figger.

"Same here. Got one yit?"

"Ncap."

"Neither hev I. How much you goin to pay when you do git one?"

"About $15."

No Trusts For Him.

"Yes," remarked satan firmly, "I would rather yield something to the liberal theology than resign myself into the clutches of any 'coal trust.'" Accordingly he gave orders to have gasoline stoves substituted for the ranges hitherto employed.—Detroit Tribune.

The Deacon and the Kid.

Boy—I've just lost 10 cents.

BULLET IN HIS BRAIN.

Misee Was Tired of Life, but Couldn't Kill Himself.

A peculiar case was begun in the superior court in Santa Rosa, Cal., the other day by Fred Misee. It is for the purpose of having his brother, John Misee, who is now in an insane asylum, declared sane.

John Misee enjoys the distinction of being the only man in this part of the state who wears a large sized bullet in his head, and he has enjoyed that distinction for two years. Two years ago he became tired of life, and taking a 44 caliber revolver he placed it within a few inches of his forehead and fired. The ball made a hole almost as big as the end of a man's thumb, and why it did not kill him is a mystery to medical men here.

He was laid up a few weeks, but finally surprised his old companions by appearing among them. The physicians did not probe for the ball, fearing that they would strike the brain, and so it has never been disturbed. It was their belief that the cartridge was not a very strong one, and that after it penetrated the skull the ball dropped down between the brain and the skull. About a year ago he showed signs of insanity, and when he was examined the physician ascribed his condition to the presence of the bullet so near his brain. Now it is claimed that he is well again.

Views and Opinions.

Fuddy—Snapshot was showing me a lot of photographs he has taken. They are only passable, but to hear Snapshot talk you would think them marvels of the photographic art.

Duddy—Yes, Snapshot isn't much of an artist, but then his views are better than his opinions.—Boston Transcript.

The Quotation.

"Mr. Barclay is so well read. He repeated an exquisite quotation last night."

"What was it?"

"I can't give you the exact words, but he said he'd rather be a something in a something than a something else in a something else."—Chicago Record.

Signs and Omens.

"Do you believe in signs and omens?"

"Why, yes—in a measure."

"That's rather indefinite."

"Well, I wouldn't try to court a girl after I had seen a good, wide awake watch-dog in her father's front yard."—Chicago Post.

What He Said.

"You have testified that my client's reputation for truth and veracity is bad?"

"Yes, sir."

"How do you know it is bad. Isn't that just your personal opinion? Did you ever hear anybody say they would doubt his word?"

"Yes, I have."

"Who said it?"

"Alderman Blank."

"Did Alderman Blank say this man was a liar?"

"No, not exactly."

"Not exactly, eh? Well, now tell the court just what Alderman Blank did say."

"He said he wouldn't believe Jim Scuggins any more'n he would a lawyer."—Detroit News.

Satisfaction Guaranteed.

Not many years ago, according to the annals of the India office, a queen's messenger or some other inferior official was robbed, though not injured in any way, on his road to Kabul, and the British government, of course, wrote to complain of it. No reply was received for months, but at last the emir wrote: "The matter you mention has been thoroughly investigated, and not only have the robbers of your messenger been put to death, but all their children, as well as their fathers and grandfathers. I hope this will give satisfaction to her majesty the queen."—Argonaut.

The First Blow.

"George, have you and Jimmie been fighting again?"

"Well, Jim hit me."

"I didn't, nuther. He hit me first."

"No such a thing. He hit me before I hitted him."

"He's telling you a big story, mamma."

"Didn't you hit me first?"

"No, I didn't. You dodged."—Cleveland Plain Dealer.

Consequences.

VIEWS OF A BACHELOR.

What This Sage Says About Men, Women and Matrimony.

Marriage is the Keeley cure of love.

A girl can't look at a mouse in a cage without getting creepy around the ankles.

A man always trys to look amused when he reads the woman's page of a newspaper in the street car.

Women always wear a lot of funny clothes because they think it makes them seem more of a mystery to a man.

A woman is awfully proud when she thinks she had made something out of some turkey red muslin and a dry goods box.

A woman can never really enjoy a vacation because she is all the time wondering if she will find any signs of sweeping when she gets home.

Pretty teeth are very often at the foundation of a girl's reputation for jollity.

Women may claim that they like a man who always keeps his temper, but they don't.

There are some women who never find occasion to bewail the passing of the days of chivalry.

Some girls' mothers must be forgetful, or else they were so good when they were young that they didn't need watching.

The woman who always has something good to say about people gets awfully monotonous.

Girls like to talk of their "modiste," because it sounds more expensive than "dressmaker."

A woman can never be mean to a man who can make the tears come into his eyes when he wants to.

If a man doesn't get engaged before he is old enough, he waits till he is too old.

If women were judged by other women, there wouldn't be many female angels.

The nearer a girl sits to a man the more of a faraway look she gets in her eyes.

A woman can never understand why men don't like to nurse sick people and go to funerals.

Very few men who fall down in a public place have the grit not to look around and smile as if they enjoyed it.

When a man is naturally thin and cadaverous, he calls himself wiry.

I wonder why girls seem so like to kiss the silky fur of a cat so much.

Men raise their hats less often as they grow older, because they have less hair.

Some women's idea of culture is to wear a lorgnette and use smelling salts in a street car.

A woman always insists on leaving a piece of cold oilcloth around somewhere where a man will step on it with his bare feet in the dark.

Up to the time she is 18 a girl often wonders if she will ever know as much as her mother. After that her mother is apt to wonder if she knows as much as she does.—New York Press.

He Knew.

The new woman orator waxed eloquent.

"And what," she demanded as she came to the climax, "is to be the result of our emancipation?"

She looked around with the calm assurance of one who had asked a poser, and this was too much for the little man who was waiting for his wife in a far corner of the hall.

"I know," he shouted.

"Ah," resumed the new woman on the platform scornfully, "the little man with the bald head thinks he has solved the problem that we came here to discuss this afternoon. We will gladly give our attention while he tells us what is to be the result."

"Cold dinners and ragged children," roared the little man.—Chicago Post.

A Dollar a Year.

A brawny Swede visited Marriage Clerk Salmonson's office the other day and inquired the price of a license. He was informed that the precious document would cost him $1. Drawing from his pocket a sock, he slowly counted out in nickels, dimes and pennies $9 and pushed the pile of coins across the counter.

"You've made a mistake here," said Clerk Salmonson; "and given me too much money. The license costs only $1."

"Dot's all right," replied the Swede complacently. "Ay tank Ay know Christina purt well. Ay tak may chances two year, anyhow."—Chicago Times-Herald.

Unhappy Man.

"That yelling Smithers young one kept me awake all night," growled the bachelor boarder.

"I suppose it is annoying," said the sympathetic landlady, "but you must remember, Mr. Cross, that you were a baby once on a time yourself."

"Mebbe I was," growled the bachelor boarder, "but I hoped I had succeeded in living it down."—Cincinnati Enquirer.

Wastefulness.

"I wish," said Mr. Stormington Barnes, "that people, however much they may be moved to indignation, would not throw eggs."

"Yes," replied the leading man, "it's a very bad practice. Even if the eggs are good to start with, the concussion spoils them for culinary purposes."—Washington Star.

5 O'CLOCK EXTRA

A FATAL SHOCK

Terrific Explosion of Naptha Last Night.

VICTIMS TESTING A WATER GAS PLANT.

Clothes and Flesh Torn From Their Bodies.

West Upton, Mass., Nov. 11.—An explosion of naphtha in a resort used in connection with a water gas plant, at the straw factory of William Knowlton & Son, in this town, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, will result in the loss of three lives. The fatally injured are: Fred G. Bulmahan, aged 23; Thomas Williams, aged 39, and John Williams, aged 27. Charles Nelson and James Salham were injured, but will recover.

Mr. Bulmahan had just completed the installation, for William Knowlton & Son, of a water gas plant, at the cost of $25,-000. This being a country town, the plant was lighted, in part, by gas made at the neighboring town of Grafton. Mr. Knowlton, Sr., was opposed to the water gas plant, but his son believed in it as an improvement and a good equipment. Mr. Bulmahan was testing the plant, when a naphtha valve sprung aleak, and the fluid ran down upon a heater. The naphtha ignited and an explosion instantly followed, shattering the windows and tearing a hole in the roof. The men were blown out of the building, and when picked up they were nearly nude. Of the three men who are fatally injured, the skin peeled from their faces and breast, presenting a sickening and heart-rending sight. These men were taken to the dyehouse, 50 feet away, and medical attendance summoned. Drs. Taber and Kurby of Upton and Maxwell of Grafton responding. It was impossible to render the men any aid, as death was only a question of a few hours. Professional nurses from the Worcester hospital were sent for.

Nelson and Salham were burned about the face and arms, and were able to return to their homes. The force of the explosion was of considerable extent, and that greater damage was not done is undoubtedly due to the fact that the gas plant was built in the substantially constructed brick shed, one story in height, and 20 by 30 feet in area.

The explosion was the worst accident ever occurring in this vicinity. It is quite probable that the gas plant will not be used, owing to this unfortunate affair and the objection of Mr. William Knowlton to it. The property damage, outside of the destruction of the resort, is not very heavy.

A Crazy Man's Antics.

Biddeford, Me., Nov. 11.—Joseph Archambault, aged 55, residing on King street, caused a scare in that neighborhood last night, by being suddenly attacked with a violent fit of insanity. He demolished furniture, drove his family from home, and then left the house himself and wandered about the streets. He went to the Boston and Maine western division station, threw himself on the track and thrashed about till covered with bruises. It required the combined efforts of four officers to overpower him.

Train Broke Apart.

Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 11.—A through freight from Boston to Portland broke apart near the Winter street crossing this morning. The break was about two cars back of the engine, and the rear section crashed into the forward section with such force as to derail eight cars. Brakeman Miller was sent to the hospital, badly hurt. Conductor Olney was able to resume work. The cars were heavily loaded, but the train was running at a slow rate of speed. The damage to rolling stock is about $8000.

Goes to Pratt.

Middleboro, Mass., Nov. 11.—The recount of votes for David G. Pratt (Rep.), for representative in the Seventh Plymouth district, gave him a gain of three, or a total majority of eight over Rev. W. C. Litchfield, who ran independently. In the caucuses, Mr. Pratt defeated Mr. Litchfield by five votes, and by the same number on the returns on election day. Mr. Litchfield then petitioned for the recount.

Wife Crazed by Husband's Suicide.

Boston, Nov. 11.—Frank Bertsch of Malden, a brass finisher out of work, missing since Saturday, was found dead yesterday in a Medford marsh, with a bullet hole in his head. He probably committed suicide through despondency. His wife is mentally unbalanced since his disappearance.

Again Before the Court.

Bridgeport, Conn., Nov. 11.—The famous Porter-Ritch case, which has been before the superior court of this (Fairfield) county in one form or another for several years, was placed on trial yesterday. The most of the day was spent in wrangling between counsel, and but very little progress was made. The amount involved in the suit is about $250,000, which Timothy Porter claims he was induced to sign away all right and title to while he was held in durance, on the ground of insanity. The defendant, Thomas G. Ritch, denies the allegation, and denies that Porter has any legal claim on the property he sues to recover possession of. Porter's first wife was a daughter of the late J. B. Hoyt of Stamford. After her death, he began paying attention to a young woman named Earle of this city, and at this point his relatives had him restrained, on the ground that he was of unsound mind. After his release, he married Miss Earle.

Two Men Instantly Killed.

Greenfield, Mass., Nov. 11.—Three men were struck by an express on the Fitchburg railroad last night. They were attempting to board a special eastbound freight. Two of the men were instantly killed, and the third, Christopher Brogan of Worcester, fatally injured. The dead men are supposed to be Ford Baton of Peacedale, R. I., and John P. Phelan, residence unknown.

SEA DOG'S PLUCK

Saved Armenians From the Merciless Turks.

THEY TOOK REFUGE ON BRITISH BOAT.

Backed Up By U. S. Admiral Selfridge.

New York, Nov. 11.—Steamship Boyne of the Mercantile Steamship company of London arrived in port, from Gibraltar and Mediterranean ports, yesterday. Captain Fischer told a remarkable story to Collector of the Port Kilbreath of the customs department, as to why he had entered port without a manifest.

ADMIRAL SELFRIDGE.

The British steamship Boyne lay at anchor off Smyrna, Turkey in Asia, on Oct. 10. There had been several riots in Smyrna for three or four days before. The din of another conflict reached the ears of the Boyne's captain about 7 o'clock in the evening, and the cries of the victims of the assassins came over the water. An hour afterward, a small boat came up to the side of the British steamship, and an aged man begged permission to go aboard. With him were six others, three of them women, all Armenian refugees. Captain Fischer assented. He fed them, cared for them, and gave them the protection of his flag. Fischer said he was bound for America, and in order to be on the safe side, the refugees were registered as passengers.

Not long afterward, a boatload of Turks, under an officer, rowed up alongside, and the forces came aboard. Captain Fischer admitted that he had the refugees on his vessel, but refused to deliver them over. He drew up his crew of brawny men, and the Turkish officer said he would give the Britisher until morning to turn over the Armenians. After the Turks had left his vessel, Captain Fischer manned a boat, and moved stealthily away from the ship, to secure assistance. He visited an Italian man-of-war, but the commander denied his right or wish to interfere, as he was there to protect the subjects of King Humbert, he said.

Captain Fischer had at length to give up the search, and, returning to his vessel, made all preparations for a run for it. When dawn came, however, out of the mists, away down the bay, the outlines of a white hull appeared. The great white stranger was the United States warship Minneapolis. The British flag was sent swinging out upside down, and the Minneapolis' lookout saw the signal of distress. Captain Fischer put off in a small boat, and was royally received. He told his story, and Admiral Thomas Q. Selfridge, Jr., commandant of the European squardon, said:

"We'll give you all the assistance you want. You'll take these refugees safely out of this port if I've got to bombard the town," and the admiral ordered off the barge with a detail of marines and blue-jackets, over to the British ship, with orders to hold her safe from attack. Then the American consul was sent for, and it was agreed that the Boyne should sail at once, under the escort of the Minneapolis. Soon bloody Smyrna was many miles behind, but the captain had forgotten his manifest. Captain Fischer added that he had landed the Armenians at Ellis island yesterday.

Two Forgers In Custody.

Boston, Nov. 11.—Joseph F. Averill of Cambridge and Ernest H. Leondardt of Providence were arrested yesterday for passing forged orders for goods on almost all the principal wholesale firms in the oil, hardware and trunk business in this city. The men confessed to passing over 20 orders during the last month. The forged orders were always for a small amount of goods, purported to be ordered by retail dealers and builders, and the men have been very successful.

Three Deaths Will Result.

West Upton, Mass., Nov. 11.—An explosion of naphtha in a resort used in connection with a water gas plant, at the straw factory of William Knowlton & Son, in this town, at 4 o'clock yesterday afternoon, will result in the loss of three lives. The fatally injured are: Fred G. Bulmahan, aged 23; Thomas Williams, aged 39, and John Williams, aged 27. Charles Nelson and James Salham were injured, but will recover.

Circus Interfered With Politics.

Atlanta, Nov. 11.—The Democratic caucus for United States senator adjourned last night at the conclusion of the 23d ballot. The result of this ballot was as follows: A. S. Clay, 53; W. Y. Atkinson, 52; Lewis, 15, and Howell, 40. The adjournment was effected in order to let the legislators hear from their constituents, and to give them a chance to see the circus today.

Afraid of American "Cartwheels."

London, Nov. 11.—A Vienna dispatch to The Times, alluding to Russia's efforts to secure trade in China, says that Russian silver roubles are being minted in large quantities for circulation in China, in view of the fact that Chinese confidence in the American silver dollar has been somewhat shaken.

MEN OF BOTH PARTIES.

Congratulate Chairman Hanna Upon Success of the Campaign.

New York, Nov. 11.—A luncheon in honor of Mark A. Hanna was given here yesterday. The host was Isaac N. Seligman of the banking house of J. & W. Seligman, and the guests included a number of the most prominent business men and financiers in the city. More than 30 guests sat at the table.

When the time for speaking came, Isaac N. Seligman addressed the company briefly upon the situation which led to the gathering. He especially emphasized the urgent necessity for joint action in the future by the Republicans and National Democrats upon currency matters. He then called upon Mr. Hanna, who said that he felt that he was addressing an important body of New York bankers, and he spoke of the general work of the campaign. The present organization of the Republican party, and also of the National Democratic party, he understood, would remain in the field to further the good work so auspiciously begun. Mr. Hanna said also that the new administration would begin its work without any pledges, and wholly untrammelled in the selection of a cabinet, a statement which was heartily applauded. Mr. Hanna said that he hoped they would be able to enlist all good citizens in the cause represented by the national banner.

Ex-Mayor Hewitt congratulated Mr. Hanna upon the generalship which he had displayed, and paid a high compliment to Major McKinley. He concluded by asking that he be permitted to enroll himself under the banner of the National Democratic party, and by proposing as a toast the success of the incoming administration, to which he pledged the support of himself and of all patriotic Democrats.

General Porter, Carl Schurz and several others also spoke. The burden of these addresses was that after so many years of stormy discussion, the country needed an absolute rest from political agitation.

A Knockout For Receivership.

Topeka, Nov. 11.—Judge Horton, who was retained by the Atchison, Topeka and Santa Fe Railway company in the alien land act receivership case, yesterday made the important discovery that the act upon which the present case is based was not constitutionally passed by the legislature, and that, therefore, it is of no effect. This fact, alone, it is said, will end the receivership matter most effectually. Judge Horton finds the fatal defect in the house journal of 1891, which does not record that the house adopted the bill by a yea and nay vote, as the constitution requires. It is said that there are 13 acts defective in the same way among the session laws of 1891.

Hurt by Farmer's Alliance.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The 30th annual session of the National Grange, patrons of husbandry, met here today. General Secretary Trimble and Master Brigham delivered addresses, and these were followed by reports of officers. General Secretary Trimble says the year has been an exceedingly prosperous one for the grange, during which 169 subordinate granges have been organized, as against only 92 the previous year. The grange, however, he says, is not so strong now as 20 years ago, because the Farmers' alliance hurt the association very much in the south. The latter association is political, he says, while the grange is not.

Successful Initial Dip.

Baltimore, Nov. 11.—Torpedo boat No. 4, the second of the three built at the Columbian iron works for the United States navy, was launched yesterday. The vessel is an exact counterpart of No. 3, which was launched at the iron works Oct. 1. The launch was in every way a perfect success. The new fighting craft was christened No. 4 by Miss Eliza Agnus, daughter of General Felix Agnus. In breaking a bottle of wine over the bow of the new boat, Miss Agnus expressed the hope that its mission should be the bringing of peace in time of war, and to prevent war in time of peace.

Suffocated by Gas.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—Louis Doerfel, aged 67, and Bertha Miller, aged 4, were suffocated by gas at the former's home last night. Magdalena Doerfel, the aged wife of the dead man, is hovering between life and death. They were found lying upon the floor of the kitchen. It is supposed that while Mrs. Doerfel was ironing, her dress caught the stopcock of a gas stove in the room, and turned on the deadly fluid. Doerfel had practically lost the sense of smell, and his wife was suffering from a violent cold, so that neither could detect the presence of the gas in the room, and were unaware of it until they toppled over.

A Far Reaching Scheme.

Cleveland, Nov. 11.—It is definitely announced that the Immense International Street Railway syndicate, recently formed, will operate in New York, as well as in London, Paris and other European cities. Compressed air has been finally decided upon as the power to be used. A number of directors of the Seamless Tube company, that will manufacture the reservoirs for the compressed air, are looking into the feasibility of building their immense new factory in this city.

Now Belongs to Uncle Sam.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The United States yesterday became the owner of the property on Tenth street, in which Abraham Lincoln died. The house is situated directly opposite the old Ford's theater, and it was there Lincoln was carried after the assassination, and there he died. The house has lately been occupied by the Lincoln Memorial association as a museum of relics of the martyred president, and it was for the purpose of perpetuating this museum that congress appropriated $30,000 for the purchase of the property.

Against "Tariff For Trusts."

Sioux Falls, Nov. 11.—Senator Pettigrew opened the campaign of 1900 here, when he addressed the largest audience ever gathered in this city. It was announced as the beginning of the bimetallic fight of four years hence. The senator said he would render McKinley every aid possible for him to demonstrate that the tariff was what ailed the country, but he wanted to put himself on record by saying he would resist every section of a tariff bill that provided for a tariff on any article controlled by a trust.

State Secrets Revealed.

London, Nov. 11.—In the course of a speech at Enfield last evening, Sir Charles Dilke, an authority on international politics, said that England had recently rejected a proposal by the three great powers to partition China. He also said that the alleged recent inspection of the forts of the Dardanelles by a Russian general was by order of the Russian government, and that, therefore, it was probable that Russia would regard a British attack on the Dardanelles as a casus belli.

MAJOR McKINLEY

Visited Continuously at His Home.

The Delegations Come From All Points.

Canton, O., Nov., 11.—Governor Pingree of Michigan, accompanied by Colonel John Atkinson of Detroit, a Michigan elector and senator-elect, spent two hours with President-elect McKinley yesterday afternoon. They came to Canton evidently to talk over Michigan affairs, as connected with the coming national administration. To a reporter, Mr. Pingree said there has never been any doubt about Michigan. He said the tariff question was the issue upon which the Republicans carried the state. When asked if Michigan had any candidate for cabinet positions, Colonel Atkinson winked one eye at the reporter and the other at Mr. Pingree, when he replied that Michigan had a great many people in her borders.

Another caller yesterday was Mr. William C. Beer of New York, manager of the National Surety company. The steady stream of visitors continued all day. The chief of the Chicago speakers' bureau, William M. Hahn, remained for dinner, before leaving for home last night.

It is now expected that Major McKinley will leave, with his wife, for Cleveland on Friday, if her health permits. She has not gained in strength as rapidly as was hoped. Major McKinley appears in robust health. He was at his best as he chatted with his friends in the library last night. At the same time it is very evident that no man could pass through the work and strain of months past without suffering a relaxation, although his callers can see no sign of it.

Every hour brings to the house remembrances from friends in all parts of the country. Flowers are banked up in beautiful clusters all over the house. Chairs, canes, horseshoes, souvenir medallions and badges, roosters, eagles and all sorts of offerings have arrived by express, and give some rooms in the house an appearance of old curiosity shops, combined with a rare collection of curios and a flower show. These presents are, many of them, carried to Mrs. McKinley, who regards them with great interest, when able to see them. She spent most of the day on a couch in her room, and her devoted and ever watchful husband makes 100 trips a day across the hall, to see to her comfort and welfare. No matter who the caller be, nothing is allowed to prevent his frequent presence at the side of Mrs. McKinley. He also finds time to call on his mother, nearly a mile away, every day, and the charming old lady, 87 years of age, makes frequent trips in her one-horse surrey to the historic house of her son.

Chauncey M. Depew's congratulations came in an autograph letter yesterday.

The following letter was yesterday received by Major McKinley from ex-President Harrison: "The use of the mails instead of the wires as the carrier of my congratulations does not imply that they are less, but rather that they are more thoughtful and deliberate. It is a great honor, indeed, when a personal success is identified with a great national triumph. The issues forced to the front by the Chicago platform put the fight on such lines that the Republican party could use the old breastworks and make an unfailing appeal to the patriotism of the south as well as the north. I sincerely hope that you may be given the wisdom and strength needed in this emergency to restore and establish the prosperity of the nation."

Among the arrivals in the city last night were Chairman Roberts of the Kentucky Republican committee and Secretary of State McTaylor of Ohio.

THANKS GOLD DEMOCRATS

But Senator Hoar Thinks That Republicans Should not be Forgotten

Worcester, Mass., Nov. 11.—The Young Men's Republican club of Worcester celebrated the election of McKinley and Hobart last evening, by a banquet. Charles T. Tatman presided, and, with him at the head of the table, were seated a number of other Republican leaders. In the course of a speech, Senator Hoar said the result of the election furnished an occasion for thanksgiving to Almighty God. This country is now about to start on a new career of prosperity and glory. The music of the factory, the voice of the well-paid workman, and the confidence of the business man will furnish subjects for congratulation. But, after all, the chief cause for congratulation is found in the fact that this nation has been saved from an act of dishonor. It were far better if every factory in Massachusetts were closed, and every workman sent back to get his living, as did our forefathers, from the soil and the sea, and that every dollar of accumulated wealth perished, than that this great, free, noble republic should engage in a grand act of swindling and national bankruptcy. The success of Bryan would have been a disgrace to the American flag, a dishonor to the American name.

"We do well to praise those patriotic Democrats who left their party and came to our aid," said Mr. Hoar, "but we must not forget that the Republicans had something to do with the result of the election. The victory was won by men who swept the country two years ago. We honor the Democrats who left their party, but we cannot help remarking that if a man wants to ward off a blow aimed at the honor of his country he must leave the Democratic party to do it, and if he wants to strike a blow at the honor and prosperity of the country, he must leave the Republican party to do it."

Mr. Hoar said that he saw new hope of a permanent adjustment of the tariff in the history of the past four years. "The Democrats are as thoroughly committed to the principle or protection as are the Republicans," he said. "The secret of the victory in the campaign just closed lies not in the influence of the national banks and money corporations but it was the savings banks, with their $466,000,000 of invested savings, not more than $1500 of which was deposited by a single individual, that gave the 150,000 majority for McKinley in Massachusetts."

LABORING MEN PROTEST.

Against Alleged Discrimination In Selecting Grand Jurors.

New York, Nov. 11.—Knights of Labor and the American Federation of Labor, through their officers, have demanded a revision of the lists from which the grand jurors of the country are selected. The labor organizations allege that too many capitalists and too few workingmen are on the lists to insure justice. Both the organizations yesterday sent to the board of commissioners of grand jurors a memorial, containing a list of members of the two organizations who, it is claimed, are eligible as grand jurors. A demand was made that these men be placed on the lists, to represent labor interests.

The memorials are the result of a careful watching of the doings of the grand jury for several months by members of the two organizations. The disposition of cases involving corporations before the grand jury was followed with interest. A few weeks ago Secretary Kelly of district assembly 49 wrote to District Attorney Fellows, enclosing a list of over 23 persons killed on the tracks of the New York Central railroad within the city limits, and asking what steps had been taken by the district attorney's office toward making this company provide better safeguards for the preservation of human life. The men killed, Mr. Kelly said, were mainly employes of the company. District Attorney Fellows, through his secretary, Henry W. Unger, replied to this communication, stating that the cases had been submitted to several grand juries, who, after investigation, had dismissed the complaints.

This reply angered the members of district assembly 49, and when the matter was considered in executive session, it was unanimously decided to employ counsel and, if necessary, to compel the representation of the laboring classes on the grand jury. When the grand jury for this month was sworn in by Judge Newburger, and the list disclosed that all selected were wealthy men, the matter was brought to a head by the memorials and demand agreed upon.

Cheese Shippers Evading the Law.

Ottawa, Nov. 11.—Complaints have reached the Canadian agricultural department recently of the arrival of consignments of "filled" cheese at Liverpool, from Chicago via Montreal, the boxes not being branded. Extra inspectors were appointed at Montreal, to watch all through consignments, and to prevent the shipment of that class of cheese unless it is branded as such. Saturday last a consignment of 177 boxes, from Chicago for Glasgow, was discovered and held. The authorities at Washington have been notified of the seizure, and have been asked to take action against the shippers for not branding the cheese as the law requires.

Concessions to Catholics.

Winnipeg, Nov. 11.—Official announcement of the terms on which the parochial school question has been settled is still delayed, owing to Premier Greenway's absence, but everything is so definitely arranged that his ministers are not now so closely guarding the secret. The chief concession is that half an hour each day in the national or public schools will be set apart for religious instruction. Another concession is that in districts where there is any considerable percentage of French Catholic children, the French language shall be taught, as well as the English. Official announcement of the terms of settlement is expected to morrow.

Lynching Avoided.

Richmond, Mo., Nov. 11.—After the sheriff had in vain tried to persuade the mob that surrounded the jail, trying to get at and lynch Jesse Winner and Lon Lackey, charged with the murder of Mrs. Eva Winner and her two children, John Sharp, a brother of the woman, addressed the would-be lynchers. While he wanted the murderers punished, he wanted the punishment to come through legal process of law, if possible. His talk finally had a good effect, and within an hour afterward, the crowd scattered. It is believed no further attempt at lynching will be made.

Iowa on Her Trial Trip.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—The new United States battleship Iowa steamed down the Delaware river yesterday, for her builders' trial in the Atlantic, off the Delaware capes. The ship is almost completed, and the trip is for the purpose of testing the stability of her hull and machinery. While she is away, a test of her speed may also be made, although there is no doubt of the ship's ability to exceed the speed requirement of 16 knots an hour. The trial is entirely private, and the Cramps have sole charge, the government being represented by only one officer.

"Official" Report of Victory.

Madrid, Nov. 11.—News from Manilla is to the effect that the Spaniards have had a brilliant victory over the rebels, and have captured their strongly fortified position at Noveleta after desperate fighting. The rebels had 400 killed, and the Spanish loss was 33 killed, according to the official report.

Three Burned to Death.

Perrinton, Mich., Nov. 11.—The residence of Sandy Campbell, four miles from this place, was burned to the ground yesterday, burning to death Mr. Campbell's cousin, a youth, 19 years of age, and Mr. Campbell's two children, aged 2 and 6 years. One child escaped by jumping from the window.

The Latest Armenian Massacre.

London, Nov. 11.—The Daily News' Constantinople correspondent says: The Everek massacre lasted from noon of Friday, Oct. 30, till Saturday night, when it was stopped by the troops from Cesaerea (Kaisren). The Armenians say that 300 persons were killed.

Smallpox at Holyoke.

Holyoke, Mass., Nov. 11.—A case of smallpox was reported to the city physician last night. The patient is a boy in a Fountain street tenement, and the place has been quarantined.

Honored by the Kaiser.

City of Mexico, Nov. 11.—Baron Von Ketteler, German minister to Mexico, in the name of the German emperor, yesterday presented General Diaz with the order of the Red Eagle of Prussia, and the order of Prussian Crown to Minister of Foreign Relations Mariscal and Minister of Finance Limantour. A very brilliant assemblage witnessed the ceremony, and the German minister appeared in court costume.

MR. LABOUCHERE

Gives His Views Upon the Castles' Case.

TALKS OF THE U. S. DOLLAR-CRAZY

And Whacks "Munchausen Garner."

London, Nov. 11.—Mrs. W. M. Castle of San Francisco, who, upon pleading guilty of shoplifting, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, was discharged and restored to the care of her husband yesterday.

Henry Labouchere, in Truth, devotes 1½ pages to the Castles' case, during which, he says: I learn that a few magistrates favored a heavier sentence, and a few were for releasing the prisoner. Had she been released on the ground of mental infirmity, she would not have been the gainer; for she would have been sent to a criminal lunatic asylum, according to the law since 1883. The sentence seems to me light, considering the circumstances. I do not believe in kleptomania, for it only seems to attack the rich, and, if it really exists, I am sure that the punishment of every person stealing, while suffering therefrom, would have a very deterrent effect upon its spreading. Mrs. Castle got off cheaply, when told of her imprisonment for three months, without hard labor. The effect on her health seems improbable, for I gather she has been traveling in Europe and, except for the matter of stealing, her health was the same as anybody else's. Probably the regret for what she has done, and what has come to her for doing it, will weigh on her spirits; but, this is precisely the state of mind imprisonment is intended to produce in a prisoner, and if this regret really causes her to be sick, she will be transferred to a hospital, where she will be care for by all connected with it.

The Castle case is remarkable for the many objects found in the Castles' trunks, stolen in Vienna. How were the custom houses passed on the journey to England? One would have thought that the officers would have been surprised to find such a large number of opera glasses and fans.

Continuing, Mr. Labouchere expresses surprise at the fact that Mr. Castle did not notice the collection of goods in their room at the Hotel Cecil, and adds: The child seems generally to have accompanied the mother when urged by her peculiar disease to go to a shop to pilfer. This child saw nothing.

Mr. Labouchere, after a sarcastic reference to the defense and acquittal of another wealthy woman for stealing hotel candlesticks, remarks: On the morning of Mrs. Castle's sentence, a seamstress and a governess were sentenced at the same session to nine and six months' hard labor, for stealing a fur necklet, and neither had ever been previously convicted. The governess fainted at the sentence, no medical experts testified they were kleptomaniacs, no eminent counsel suggested they would suffer in health by confinement, no one pitied them, and no one signed a petition to the home secretary to shorten their sentences. What matters how a poor fainting, friendless governess or half-starved seamstress suffers? Give them hard labor, and plenty of it. What if their health is injured? Let them die. Let Mrs. Castle out of prison, Sir Matthew White Ridley; she has moved in the best circles and she had no need to steal; but do not reduce the sentences of the seamstress and governess by a single day. The best circles knew them not. They are poor and helpless, which, in the opinion of all self-respecting persons, is in itself a crime.

Commenting on the recent election in the United States, Mr. Labouchere says: If Bryan had been wise, he would have gone in for bimetallism, if it pleased him; but he could have left the ratio indefinite. His ratio meant that right of all to repudiate half his obligations without thus bettering any one in the future. But the victors will do well to realize that apart from bimetallism there is a strong, growing feeling in America against huge accumulations of capital in the hands of individuals, obtained by the means of the trusts, which are really monopolies, and gambling with cogged dice in railroads. The greedy plutocracy, unsupported by an unarmed force, cannot long hold its own against the rights and well-being of all. I am nowise certain that had I been an American I should not have voted the Democratic ticket, had it not been that I regard all tampering with the coinage of a country as injurious to all, and it does not strike me that Mr. Bryan is up to the presidential mark.

America's worst product is its dollar-cracy, whose men have literally nothing to recommend them. The odds are that either they or their parents acquired huge fortunes by the most questionable means. As a rule, they are ignorant and vulgar, building big houses in order to dazzle by ostentatious entertainments, and buying pictures, for which they only care because they have been acquired at high prices, selling their souls to anyone who will enable them to hobnob with royalists, and their daughters to anyone who will confer a title upon them, despising their own country and institutions, and regarding themselves as in every respect superior to others on account of their dollars. If the United States is not to become a mere plutocratic and oligarchy power, these worthies, which have increased, and are increasing, must greatly diminish.

Truth also has an article, covering 1¾ pages, headed, "The Munchausen of Monkeyland," dealing with Professor Garner (who claims to have distinguished words in a monkey language) and his book, repeating the old charges, made by Truth, of imposture, and declaring that the whole story of Professor Garner's adventures among the gorillas is an impudent humbug. The article suggests that the French missionaries at Fernanvas, to whom, it alleges, Professor Garner gave a promissory note for 500 francs for board and lodging, should sign a judgment in England on the unpaid bill, and should attach the proceeds of his book. Truth concludes that this would set at rest forever the question of where Professor Garner really spent those 100 days and nights.

BUFFALO WOMEN NOW OWN THEIR OWN CLUBHOUSE.

The Twentieth Century Club a Pioneer. Charlotte Mulligan, the President, Tells How the Women Raised $50,000 In Two Weeks—They Employ No Women.

The Twentieth Century club of Buffalo opened its new clubhouse the other evening. This club is composed exclusively of women, and the fact that it is the first woman's club in the country to establish itself, buy a home and run its affairs on the same lines on which men's clubs are run entitles it to attention.

Charlotte Mulligan, writer and musical director, is the president and the motor that supplies the force and directs the affairs of this club of 250 women.

"We wanted a home," said this energetic woman, "and the earnest work of our board of directors has won a home for us. We found a desirable piece of property in an old Baptist church that had been for sale a long time. Since a synagogue had been built next door to it it was not in demand as church property. The agent wanted $30,000 for it. When I said the Twentieth Century club would buy it, he only laughed at me. But he gave me the refusal for two weeks. The board of directors met. We issued 750 shares of stock at $100 per share. In less than two weeks we had sold more than half of it. We paid cash for the property, and then we built a beautiful front and remodeled the old building; hence, as the building stands, it cost $50,000.

"Our stock is nearly all owned by club members. We have beautiful clubrooms, which we rent to other women's clubs, and an auditorium, from which we realize rentals. Any club of women can do the same thing if they choose to do so. It is merely a simple business proposition."

The building is of the style of the Italian Renaissance. It is 78 feet wide and 96 feet deep. The main courtroom is of the Grecian Ionic style, 35 feet square, and contains 25 Ionic pillars, now of wood, but designed to be replaced by memorial pillars of marble. There are a handsome library room, a conversation room, a coffee room and an auditorium on the first floor. All the rooms are finished in white. There are kitchens, lavatories and every possible modern convenience. These Buffalo women employ no female service about their building. They think that male service is superior, in that it is more trustworthy and amenable. The Twentieth Century club claims to lead also in entertaining male friends. Any club member can bring a male guest into the club for luncheon or conversation. He cannot, however, remain after his hostess has departed. He may receive as many courtesies as women receive at men's clubs and perhaps more.

"We never do anything here we are ashamed of," said the energetic president, "and that's more than the men can say for their clubs."

Miss Mulligan is the founder and president of a literary club called the Scribblers and is also leader of the finest orchestra in Buffalo. The Twentieth Century club is entirely independent and is not allied to the Federation of Women's Clubs. It's business is the promotion of art and general culture.

The only New York club which approaches it is the Professional Woman's league.—New York Tribune.

Protection Against Dog Thieves.

Minnesota has a society for the protection of dogs from dog thieves. Its membership is over 800, and it protects over 500 dogs, mostly sportsmen's bird dogs. The society was organized as a result of the theft of valuable dogs from sportsmen whose hunting trips and the good work of their dogs had been related in a sportsmen's paper.

The society pays rewards only in rare instances, but it advertises and tries to secure the conviction of the thief. As a result "lost dog" advertisements have fallen off over 50 per cent in the daily newspapers of St. Paul. It is proposed to extend dog protection to every state.

BAYARD'S GOOD OFFICES

Had Much to do With the Release of Unfortunate Mrs. Castles.

London, Nov. 11.—Mrs. W. M. Castle of San Francisco, who, upon pleading guilty of shoplifting, was sentenced to three months' imprisonment, was discharged and restored to the care of her husband yesterday. Mr. Castle went to the Wormwood Scrubbs prison and took his wife away. Her physical and mental condition, it is said, is such as to make her immediate sailing for America impossible, and for the present she will be taken to some quiet English country retreat.

Henry Labouchere, in Truth, devotes 1½ pages to the Castles' case, during which, he says: I learn that a few magistrates favored a heavier sentence, and a few were for releasing the prisoner. Had she been released on the ground of mental infirmity, she would not have been the gainer; for she would have been sent to a criminal lunatic asylum, according to the law since 1883. The sentence seems to me light, considering the circumstances. I do not believe in kleptomania, for it only seems to attack the rich, and, if it really exists, I am sure that the punishment of every person stealing, while suffering therefrom, would have a very deterrent effect upon its spreading. Mrs. Castle got off cheaply, when told of her imprisonment for three months, without hard labor. The effect on her health seems improbable, for I gather she has been traveling in Europe and, except for the matter of stealing, her health was the same as anybody else's. Probably the regret for what she has done, and what has come to her for doing it, will weigh on her spirits; but, this is precisely the state of mind imprisonment is intended to produce in a prisoner, and if this regret really causes her to be sick, she will be transferred to a hospital, where she will be care for by all connected with it.

The Castle case is remarkable for the many objects found in the Castles' trunks, stolen in Vienna. How were the custom houses passed on the journey to England? One would have thought that the officers would have been surprised to find such a large number of opera glasses and fans.

Continuing, Mr. Labouchere expresses surprise at the fact that Mr. Castle did not notice the collection of goods in their room at the Hotel Cecil, and adds: The child seems generally to have accompanied the mother when urged by her peculiar disease to go to a shop to pilfer. This child saw nothing.

The Chronicle, in commenting upon Mrs. Castle's case, does not quarrel about the release, but wishes that the British law were more even-handed, and that the same consideration were extended to the poor as to kleptomaniacs.

The Daily News says, with reference to the same subject, that it was foreseen, and, besides, "anything to oblige Mr. Bayard."

The Standard and The Graphic both fully approve of Mrs. Castle's release.

BUSINESS MEN COMBINE.

To Organize Throughout the Country to Fight Against Silver.

Philadelphia, Nov. 11.—The McKinley and Hobart Business Men's national campaign committee, composed of some of the wealthiest men in Philadelphia, last night organized an association to be known as the Philadelphia Branch of the National League of Business Men. Similar organizations are to be formed in other cities. The project meets with the favor of Mr. Hanna. The object of the new leagues is explained in the following resolutions:

"To aid in the formation of similar organizations in all parts of the country, for the purpose of extending loyal and earnest support to the chief executive of the government in the arduous duties of his office; to encourage patriotic love for our country, as a united whole, and to break down and obliterate sectionalism; to maintain our national credit and integrity upon a sound money basis; to uphold law and order, and secure prosperity for our people; to promote the election of members of the national legislature, in the senate and house of representatives, who are in sympathy with this movement, and who will distinctly represent the business interests of the country; to present a strong and united front to the party of repudiation and disruption, who, in their hour of defeat, are threatening to immediately renew and persistently continue during the ensuing four years the assault upon the honor and integrity of our country; that immediate steps be taken to secure the formation and co-operation of other similar organizations, and to arrange for an early meeting of delegates from such organizations to perfect a permanent organization of the National League of Business Men."

Good For Farmers.

St. Paul, Nov. 11.—A quiet, but steady snow is falling, and the depth ranges from two to three inches in this city, to two or three times that in Coma and southern Minnesota. The storm began in the Dakotas some days ago, and now extends nearly all over the northwest. It is seldom heavy snow falls this early in the season, and the preceding rains, with this heavy snow, causes rejoicing among the farmers, over the prospective big crops of next year, assured by the unusually moist season.

Sioux City, Ia., Nov. 11.—A snowfall of 8 to 12 inches fell in this section Monday night and yesterday.

Leadville, Colo, Nov. 11.—The snowstorm, which began Monday, still continues, and the heaviest snow in years has already fallen. Trains are running on time.

For Assaulting His Child.

Cambridge, Mass., Nov. 11.—Judge Hardy yesterday sentenced James P. Murphy to state prison for not less than three nor more than five years. The man was found guilty of assault on his child in June last, and at that time was arrested on the charge of assault with intent to kill. On this graver charge he was acquitted, however.

SUNDAY SCHOOL CONVENTION

Held in the Baptist Church at N. Tewksbury.

The Lowell district convention of the Massachusetts Sunday School association was held in the Baptist church at North Tewksbury yesterday afternoon and evening. Warren L. Floyd, the president, conducted the meeting and John F. Williams of this city acted as secretary. Among the speakers were Rev. H. W. O. Millington and Rev. Smith T. Ford of this city.

HOOD'S EMPLOYES

Had a Chrysanthemum Party in Runels' Hall.

The employes of Hood's laboratory gave a pretty chrysanthemum party in Runels' hall last evening about 200 couples attending. Hilbard's orchestra discoursed dance music from a highly decorated platform and dancing was enjoyed until midnight.

William F. Higgins was general manager, Miss Martha McDermott assistant, Henry J. Murray floor director, Regina A. Girard assistant, and Lyman A. Hodgman Chief aid. There was also a reception committee composed entirely of young ladies and a corps of aids among which the young ladies had a large representation.

WHO THE PRIZE WINNER

Is Mr. Brunelle of Moody Street—He Gets the Suit Offered.

During the last week of the presidential contest, the enterprising clothiers, O'Hearn & Dowd, offered as a prize to the person guessing nearest to the actual vote cast in Lowell for Wolcott and Williams for governor of Massachusetts, a suit of custom-made clothes, and a large number availed themselves of the privilege of cutting the advertisement of O'Hearn & Dowd from The Sun and sending a guess to the wide-awake firm. The following persons made very good guesses:

	Wolcott	Williams
James Liston	7821	4052
A. Rault	7368	4151
Angus McDonald	7929	4750
Bert Brunelle	7365	4521
Patrick O'Brien	7641	4822
James H. O'Brien	7183	4707
John J. Shea	7392	4713
William A. Dempsey	7975	4750

The correct vote for governor as shown on the city clerk's books is, Wolcott 7390; Williams 4546. The prize, therefore, is won by Bert Brunelle, Berwick house, Moody street, whose guess is only four votes less than the actual vote for Wolcott and twenty-five less than Williams.

There were many other guessers, some of whom guessed near the vote of either Wolcott or Williams but the above were the best guesses on the vote of both candidates.

We congratulate Mr. Brunelle on his good fortune in securing one of O'Hearn & Dowd's well made and well-fitting suits.

THE ARBITRATOR

Of the Venezuelan Trouble Decided Upon

BY ENGLAND AND THE UNITED STATES.

The Question is Now Practically Settled.

Washington, Nov. 11.—Lord Salisbury's declaration, at the lord mayor's banquet, that the solution of the Venezuelan boundary question had been practically accomplished by the suggestion emanating from the United States to treat the colonial empire as individuals are treated, has caused much satisfaction here. The solution of the problem which Lord Salisbury now compliments in such flowing terms was sent by Secretary Olney to Sir Julian Pauncefote, June 12 last. Up to that time Great Britain had stipulated for a tribunal of an even number of judges whose disagreement would lead to endless diplomatic controversies, which was entirely repugnant to the United States contention, and was promptly swept away, and an uneven number of jurors substituted, who might be relied upon to make a definite decision one way or another.

SECRETARY OLNEY.

Real arbitration having thus been made possible, Secretary Olney then took up Lord Salisbury's proviso by which the boundary line, as drawn by an arbitrary tribunal, was not to include territory bona fide occupied by British subjects or Venezuelan citizens on Jan. 1, 1887. He insisted that this should be stricken out altogether, thereby making the arbitration unconditional, or that there might be substituted the following:

"Provided, however, that in fixing such line, if territory of one party be found in the occupation of the subjects or citizens of the other party, such weight and effect shall be given to such occupation as reason, justice, the rules of international law and the equities of the particular case may appear to require."

This was at the time declared to be the radical solution of the dispute, and after first ascertaining, through publication, the temper of those directly concerned regarding the suggestion, subsequent negotiations, it is now known, have been confined to elaborating the point until no doubt could possibly arise before the joint tribunal as to its intention and limitations. It is learned that Venezuela has fully consented to this arrangement, and that her officials are confident of their ability to refute every British claim to settled districts previous to 1877 in any territory west of the Pomaroon river, in which event the line of division would lie almost identical with that claimed before the Venezuelan commission in the Storrow brief.

Frederick R. Coudert, a member of the commission, said yesterday that it would be much better for the boundary to be determined by arbitration than by a decision of the commission. The report of the commission, however, if it should be made, would be of much value in determining the matter in dispute. Mr. Coudert, when asked concerning the subject of the statutes of limitation referred to in Lord Salisbury's address, said that the statement was not sufficiently definite to enable one to say what length of time would be fixed as giving a good title. He was of the opinion that the circumstances of individual cases will be taken into consideration. Mr. Coudert expressed the opinion that moral, as well as legal claims, would be recognized in any arbitration. When asked if the commission had been apprised beforehand concerning the announcement that would be made in the Guildhall speech, Mr. Coudert said that he had no prior information that Lord Salisbury was to make the announcement of the nearest approach to settlement of the question.

The King of Sweden and Norway, Oscar II, has been chosen, by the treaty between the United States and Great Britain, as the final arbitrator of the Venezuelan boundary question. The other arbitrators, four in number, are to be designated, two by the lord chief justice of England, and two by the chief justice of the United States.

This is the final and the most important feature of the treaty for the complete adjustment of the long-pending Venezuelan controversy. The treaty was concluded in Washington Monday night, at the British embassy, Sir Julian Pauncefote representing her Britannic majesty, and Secretary Olney, the United States.

The other essential feature of the treaty is that 50 years actual possession is to constitute title. With this limitation as to the settled districts, the entire sweep of Venezuela boundary is placed in the hands of the court of arbitration. The treaty covers only Venezuela, and the question of general arbitration between the United States and Great Britain is left to future negotiations. As a king seldom leaves his country, except on state visits to other sovereigns, it is not expected that King Oscar II will get outside of Sweden for the meeting of the arbitrators, and the court is likely to set at Stockholm, the capital of Sweden, where King Oscar's palace and the halls of the Sweden rekstag are located.

LOWELL MAN HELD

For Shooting a Man at Providence, R. I. Yesterday.

Providence, Nov. 11.—Joseph H. Kender was accidentally shot yesterday at a rifle range, and is in a very critical condition, the ball having severed a blood-vessel, causing internal hemorrhage. Arthur Denares of Lowell, Mass., admits that he was one of the two men shooting at the range, but claims that the rifle was discharged by Paul Bowden, a Providence marketman. Both Kender and the only other witness, a boy named Chester Thatcher, state that the shooting was accidental.

Monsoon Would Be Welcomed.

Madras, India, Nov. 11.—Anxiety is felt here at the absence of the northeast monsoon. The afflicted area is at present restricted to the ceded districts, where tentative relief works have been started. Should the monsoon fail completely, and the districts around Madras become dependent upon tank irrigation, it does not follow that they will suffer severely from the failure of the crops, because there are good harvests in the southern districts of Malabar and Kanara. This circumstance is fortunate, because Bengal and Burmah will be unable to supply enormous quantities of rice, as they did in 1877.

Both Instantly Killed.

Reading, Pa., Nov. 11.—A train on the Pennsylvania railroad ran into a carriage containing a man and woman, at the Gibraltar grade crossing, yesterday. Both were instantly killed. The man was Charles F. Bright, aged 39, a wealthy citizen of Reading. On his person were found $10,000 worth of bonds. The woman was identified as Catherine Boyer, a 19-year-old working girl, unmarried. Bright had taken her for a drive, unknown to her friends, who were under the impression that she had gone to her regular employment.

Railway Smashup at Haverhill.

Haverhill, Mass., Nov. 11.—A through freight from Boston to Portland broke apart near the Winter street crossing this morning. The break was about two cars back of the engine, and the rear section crushed into the forward section with such force as to derail eight cars. Brakeman Miller was sent to the hospital, badly hurt. Conductor Olney was able to resume work. The cars were heavily loaded, but the train was running at a slow rate of speed. The damage to rolling stock is about $8000.

Manslaughter Charged.

Boston, Nov. 11.—The trial of George Jackson, colored, for alleged manslaughter, in causing the death of Frank Bell, colored, who was fatally shot on Sept. 21, was begun here yesterday. Bell was shot through the left hand and breast, and died at the city hospital on Sept. 29. A medical examiner found that death was caused by a bullet wound in the left lung and spine.

Three Receivers Appointed.

Washington, Nov. 11.—The comptroller of the currency has appointed receivers of national banks as follows: Yates County National bank of Penn Yan, N. Y., Simon Kinne; First National bank of Garrett, Kan., R. E. Spangler; First National bank of Eddy, N. M., Isaac W. Rogers; Second National bank of Rockford, Ills., H. H. Waldo.

A Sign of the Times.

Fort Wayne, Nov. 11.—John H. Bass, proprietor of the largest car wheel works in the country, announces that he has received, since election, over $500,000 worth of orders at the works here, and the branches in Chicago and St. Louis. All the factories will be run full time.

NASHUA LAWYER

Missing and May Have Become Insane—Had Been Disbarred.

Nashua, N. H., Nov. 11.—George Y. Sawyer, Jr., 55 years of age, formerly a leading lawyer in Hillsboro county, is missing. Last Wednesday he packed his grip and told his wife that he would eat his Thanksgiving dinner in the City of Mexico. He went out, and from that time has not been heard from. About 15 years ago Sawyer was disbarred for contempt of court, and for the last few years he has been brooding considerably over his blighted career, and it is thought his mind became unsettled.

Stock Company Goes Under.

Boston, Nov. 11.—The Bay State Stock company has assigned to William A. Morse. The office was closed yesterday by keepers being placed therein. B. A. Atkinson is said to be the head of the company, which has been doing a stock brokerage business. The liabilities and assets are both small.

SOME CRISP GOSSIP.

To the stranger coming Lowellward along Andover street, the ruins of the Faulkner residence on Belmont street stand silhouetted against the sky like the ruins of the castle of medieval ages. All that is lacking to make the ruins appear like a crumbling remnant of feudal times is the creeping vine, the ivy which clings to those old walls adding to their weird beauty. The ruins of the Faulkner building stand today untouched since the fire, though lovers of beautiful architecture express the hope that ere long the work of rebuilding will begin. The Faulkner and Bonney mansions are among the "sights" always shown the visitors from out of town.

Laboring Men Object.

Concord, N. H., Nov. 11.—The proposal to use convict labor at the state prison in stone-cutting has brought out an indignant protest from journeymen granite cutters and master cutters, which promises to be so strong that no such arrangement will be made at the present time.

WHAT IT IS

What is it? A Sure Cure. That's What.

A year of it.
A year of what?
Pain and misery combined—misery mostly.
Each month worse than the one before.
Not always as bad one day as another.
But that OTHER always made up.
Terribly discouraged many times.
Wondered what would come of it all.
Pains in my back simply terrible.
Kidneys sore as a boil.
Worse in the morning after a night's REST.
REST—I didn't know what it was.
So stiff and lame mornings could hardly get up.
And the pain was there.
And it stayed there.
That is kidney disease.
That is what it IS.
Now the other side.
What is it? A sure cure.
It is just that for everybody.
What is it called?
Doan's Kidney Pills.
Will they cure some one else, but not me?
They will cure you, and them and everybody.
Who says so—the maker of the Pills?
Yes—but your neighbors say so, too.
Needn't go to 'Frisco to those cured there.
Perhaps only around the corner.
Mrs. Mary Gard of No. 4 Noble's Court is the subject of all the above and you can call on her. She suffered a great deal and can tell you of Doan's Kidney Pills—they cured her.
